LAND OFFICE BUREAU.

Board of Property.

In the last report a somewhat extended account was given of a case then pending before the Board in regard to the application of Thomas W. Moore, for an alleged vacant tract of land situated in Blair county. The question involved was that of the location of the tract originally surveyed in 1785 in the warrantee name of Robert Patterson. A caveat had been filed against the application of Moore by those claiming under the Patterson warrant, and if the location of the "Patterson" was ascertained to be at the point claimed by the caveators there would be no vacant land for the applicant, Moore. From an account of this case published in last year's report, it will be seen that the Patterson tract called for vacant land all around it. It could not, therefore, be located by calls for senior surveys, and, in subsequent surveys made for tracts adjoining the location of the Patterson as claimed by the caveators, there were many discrepancies in calls, and only in a very recent survey was there a call made by such junior warrant for the "Patterson." There was an entire absence of any marks upon the ground to indicate the location of the Patterson as claimed by the caveators. Nor were there any streams found upon the ground to correspond with the stream plotted on the official return of the Patterson. It will, therefore, be seen that in the location of this warrant the first evidence to be considered, that of marks upon the ground, was entirely wanting; and, secondly, that there were no calls for contemporary surveys or other senior surveys, and the second element of location was, therefore, also wanting. It is well established by law that in the absence of marks upon the ground and calls for adjoiners, a tract must be located according to the courses and distances found in the official return. These three elements were found to be entirely wanting in the Patterson warrant. There were no marks upon the ground, no calls for adjoiners and none of the original corners, or the place of their location being found or proven, it was impossible to locate the tract by courses and distances, as there was no place at which a surveyor could begin his work. Neither in the statutes of the Commonwealth nor in the decisions of the Supreme Court are there any directions or deductions of law by which the Patterson tract could be located. It was claimed by Moore and his witnesses that a location for the "Patterson" could be found a mile or two distant from the location claimed by the caveators, basing the location upon a stream that ran in the same direction as that indicated in the official return of the Patterson. For such a location, however, there were no marks upon the ground, and the only evidence was the stream mentioned. It was alleged by the attorney for Moore that the "Patterson," being a very old survey should, if originally surveyed at all have been located with reference to the value of the land for farming purposes. At the time of its alleged location it could not have been considered desirable for any other purposes than farming, for at that time its value as a mining tract had not been developed, and if located for farming purposes it would more reasonably have been located at the point where the surveyors for Moore had found a somewhat satisfactory location on account of the stream referred to and on account of the tilable land there found.

The Board of Property had the case under consideration for a long time without being able to make a disposition of it that was satisfactory to the members, but there appearing to be no conclusive evidence that the "Patterson" was located at the point claimed by the caveators, they decided to grant a warrant to Moore for the land applied for by him. This action was taken largely because if the board had refused to grant a warrant he would be without recourse at law, as no provision is now made whereby a defeated applicant for a warrant before the Board of Property can commence an action of ejectment. If the contest had been made under the Act of 1792, which provides for the consideration of patents by the Board of Property, the defeated party could have brought his action of ejectment within six months from the time of the determination of the case by the Board. Some distinguished land lawyers have held that a defeated applicant for a warrant may also maintain an action of ejectment, but the question has never been passed upon by the Supreme Court, and has been merely hinted at in an indirect way by one or two judges of the lower courts. It is pretty safe, therefore, to assume that the person who fails to secure a warrant from the Board of Property has no opportunity at law by which he can maintain an action of ejectment. The board discussed this subject fully, and being of the opinion that the applicant in the case referred to would have no recourse at law, decided to grant him a warrant, in order that both parties might have opportunity to have the questions involved in the case thoroughly considered and passed upon by the courts of the Commonwealth.

Several other cases were disposed of during the year, but none of them involved so intricate a question of law as the Moore case. As we have indicated in former reports, the questions that come before the Board of Property for consideration are among the most intricate that any of the State boards have to deal with.

COPYING OF RECORDS.

By virtue of the Act of 1833 provision was made by the Legislature at the session of 1893 for the copying of the mutilated surveys and other ancient papers on file in this department, referring to the history of the Commonwealth and to land titles. By a reckless discharge of duty on the part of certain legislative employes, or by some mistake when the bill was transcribed for transmission to the Executive, the provision for the copying of these records was omitted and the measure failed. During the year, however, a large number of the surveys have been copied, the force of the department being employed at the work whenever possible. The legislature at the next session will be asked to provide for two additional draftsmen, and, inasmuch as this measure has been recommended for fifty years by the executive officers of the surveyor general's office and the Department of Internal Affairs, and in one case at least by the Governor of the Commonwealth, we have no doubt provision will be made for advancing this most necessary work.

HISTORY OF LAND TITLES.

In the report for the year 1892 we gave an extended history of the titles of what are known as the depreciation lands, accompanied by a map. This history proved of considerable interest to persons who care to examine into the source of land titles. In the report for 1893 an extended history was given of the donation lands. The article contained an account of the early explorations made by General William Irvine preparatory to their location and was accompanied by a map in reference thereto. In the present report a somewhat detailed and rather complete history is given of the first titles in Pennsylvania, which will, no doubt, be of interest to surveyors generally and to those students of history who enjoy making a study of such matters.

THE EARLY LAND TITLES IN PENNSYLVANIA.

As the land in Pennsylvania and other states increases in value, greater interest is awakened in the history of its ownership. For a long period it was so cheap in many places that not much attention was bestowed on its earlier title, and still less in ascertaining accurate boundaries. In many of the early grants in Pennsylvania much more than the quantity of land specified was included in making the original survey. Of course, in the places where land has become very valuable, boundaries and quantities are carefully regarded.

Even though the titles to most of the land in the State are settled, the owners are desirous of knowing more concerning its early history. If many are interested in tracing the history of their family lineage so are historians in tracing the ownership of the land of nations, and the migrations of tribes, and the same kind of interest in varying degree is shared by the individual owner of landed possessions.

The original title of the land in Pennsylvania, as in every other colony, was by occupancy. In truth, no other can be established. From the very nature of things this must be the first or original title acquired to land everywhere. The title of might, or superior force, may be regarded as a secondary title. Of course, a large portion of the land of the globe has been taken from the original occupants at one time or another by superior might or conquest. Thus, a large portion of England was taken by William and his followers after the battle of Hastings, in 1066. Concerning the worth of a right or title to land thus acquired by occupancy or force, much has been written. One class maintain that a title or right by occupancy or force is not just; that it is a mere accident; that the occupant has done nothing whereby he can fairly retain exclusive possession. Nor does the title by might rest on a better foundation. Force is no just ground for retaining possession of a thing taken, and if a thing is thus acquired the title is defective and no subsequent transfers can make it perfect. Many writers, therefore, maintain that the true owners are the people who are entitled to possess and use the land in common.

Admitting this contention to be true, it must also be admitted that improvements by individuals are their own, and to these at least they have an absolute title. If this principle be admitted, then it can easily be shown that the chief value of land consists in the improvements that have been made from time to time by the occupants. Contrast the value of the improved lands in the thickly settled portions of our country with the lands equally fertile on the distant plains. The eastern lands are worth many dollars per acre, while the western lands, perhaps of far greater fertility, are worth but very little. Such proof clearly shows that, after all, the chief value of the soil is a human endowment, the labor of man, and this may be rightfully bought and sold and transmitted to others. Whatever, therefore, may be said concerning the right of the people in general to the soil, or to the equal division and use of it, no one can deny the right of individuals to the work of their own hands, and to its transfer through succeeding generations.

The land in Pennsylvania, like that of all the colonies, was in the occupancy of the Indians at the time of its discovery by Cabot. The title, therefore, possessed by them was simply that of occupancy. It is maintained, however, that the Indians who were then in possession of the land had not always been the possessors; that they had driven out another tribe, the Alleghewi, although no one can fix the date of the conquest. The possessors traced their origin to two sources, the Lenni Lenape and the Mengwe. The former were known among the white people by the name of Delawares. They were acknowledged by nearly forty tribes as their "grandfathers," or parent stock. They asserted that their ancestors dwelt in the far west, that they emigrated to the Mississippi, where they met the Mengwe, who had also emigrated from a distant country, and in company with them came further east, drove out the Allewegi after a long war and took possession of their country. After living together for many ages, the hunters of the Lenaps crossed the Allegheny mountains and discovered the Susquehanna and Delaware rivers. They also went as far as the Hudson and Potomac, and finally settled along these four rivers, making the Delaware the center of their possessions. These facts are worth giving for the reason that some sentimental persons who suppose that the Indians were wronged in the treaties and other bargains made with them for their land, are, perhaps, quite ignorant of the fact that those who were then in possession had no other title than that of conquest. If it be maintained that title by conquest is worthless, surely the titles acquired from the Indians were of little account, as they had nothing that they could rightfully give. Ought not Penn, therefore, to have hunted after the original occupants and made some compensation to them rather than to their conquerors for the use of the soil.

The English claimed title to all the land along the coast visited by Cabot in 1498. The Dutch, however, disputed the English claim to the land along the Delaware river, founding their right to it on the discovery of Henry Hudson, who was in the employ of the Dutch East India Company, and who explored Delaware Bay.

In tracing the titles to the land in Pennsylvania prior to the grant to William Penn by Charles II, we must begin with the acquisition and sale of the land by the Dutch, and afterward by the Swedes and finally by the Duke of York.

Though Delaware bay was discovered in 1609, the river was not explored until five years afterward by Henry Hudson, who went as far as the mouth of the Schuylkill. The same year a general charter was granted by the States-General of Holland, securing the exclusive privilege of trade during four voyages to the discoverer. Stimulated by this edict, the merchants of Amsterdam fitted out five vessels to engage in voyages, among which was the Fortune, commanded by Captain C. J. Mey. He entered the bay of Delaware and gave the name to its northern cape. To the opposite cape he also gave the name of Hindlopen, after a town in Friesland. He returned to Holland, and, in connection with other skippers, formed a company, called the United Company of Merchants, of the cities of Amsterdam and Hoorn, to which exclusive privileges were granted. The operations of the company were limited to the newly discovered lands situated in America between New France and Virginia, whereof the sea coasts lie between the 40th and 45th degrees of latitude. As these privileges were granted only for a short period, and in anticipation that they would not be renewed, another company was formed, called the West India Company. This company, by virtue of its charter, took possession of the land now lying in the State of Delaware that which, for a considerable period, formed a part of the province of Pennsylvania. Under the Dutch, it formed a part of New Netherland. The first settlement, however, on the Delaware was made at Gloucester, New Jersey. The affairs of all the Dutch settlements were administered by Peter Minuit, to whom they were confided by the West India Company, and who resided in New York. He was assisted in his government by a council of five members and a scout fascal, whose duties embraced those now usually performed by a sheriff and district attorney.

Five years afterwards, in 1629, the West India Company granted by charter special privileges to all who should plant any colony in New Netherlands. This was called the charter of "freedoms and exemptions." The members of the companies thus formed might send, on certain terms, in the company's ships three or four persons to inspect the situation of the country, with a view of selecting lands. Those who, within four years after giving notice to the company, undertook to plant a colony of fifty persons over fifteen years of age were to be educated as patroons of New Netherlands. They were to have the preference to the lands they selected, with liberty to choose others, if they did not suit, the commander and council approving. They could extend their limit sixteen English miles along the shore on one side, or eighteen English miles on each side of a navigable river, and as far into the country as their situation would permit. The jurisdiction of the river was to be in the states general or the company. They were to enjoy and possess forever the lands within their limits. If they established cities, they were to elect officers and magistrates and use the title of their colony at their pleasure. Other powers relating to trade and privileges, as well as to exemptions from taxes, were also granted. It was a system of feudal tenure and feudal burdens transplanted from continental Europe.

Under this authority to plant colonies, several directors of the West India Company, among whom were Samuel Godyn and Samuel Bloemaert, resolved to make vast territorial purchases, and through their agent purchased a large tract of land at the mouth of Delaware bay from the Indians. This grant was confirmed to the purchasers by Peter Minuit, the director, and his council on the 16th of July, 1630. A copy of this deed is as follows:

We, the director and council of New Netherland, residing on the Island of Manhattan, at Fort Amsterdam, under the jurisdiction of Their Noble High Mightiness, the Lords-States-General of the United Netherlands and the Incorporated West India Company, Department of Amsterdam, attest and declare herewith that to-day, date underwritten, appeared Peter Heyssen, skipper of the ship "Walvis," at present lying in the South river, and Gillis Hosset, commissary on the same, who declare that on the 5th day of May, last past, before them appeared personally, Sawawouwe, Wouyt, Pemhake, Mekowetick, Techepewoya, Mathamek, Sacoock, Anehoopoen, Janqueno and Pokahake, lawful owners, proprietors and inhabitants of the east side of Goddyn's bay, called Cape de Maye, who, for themselves in proportion to their own shares and for all the other owners in regard to their shares of the same land, declared of their own accord and deliberately in their said quality, to have transported, ceded and conveyed as lawful, unalienable and free property by virtue and title of sale and in consideration of a certain quantity of goods, which they, the conveyors, acknowledge in their said quality to have received and accepted before the passing of this contract, and they herewith transport, cede and convey to and in behoof of the Noble Honorable Samuel Godyn and Samuel Bloemmaert (who are absent and from whom they had accepted the herewith described land subject to the usual reservation), to wit: The east side of Godyn's bay or Cape de Maye, reaching four miles from the said cape towards the bay, and four miles along the coast southward, and another four miles inland, being sixteen square miles, with all interests, rights and privileges, which were vested in themselves in their aforesaid quality, constituting and delegating the aforesaid purchasers in their own stead as real and actual owners thereof, and giving and surrendering at the same time to their Honors, full, absolute and irrevocable power, authority and special charge, that tamquam actores et procuratores in rem propriam the Noble Messrs. Godyn and Bloemmaert, or those who might hereafter receive their property, enter upon, possess in peace, inhabit, cultivate, keep, use, do with, trade and dispose of the aforescribed land as they would do with their own inherited lands and fiefs, without that they, the conveyors, shall have, reserve or keep in the least degree any particle of claim, right or privilege thereon, be it of ownership, authority or jurisdiction, but for the behalf as aforesaid they herewith entirely and absolutely desist from, give up, abandon and renounce it now and forever, promising further, not only to keep, fulfill and execute firmly, inviolately and irrevocably in infinitum this, their contract and what might be done hereafter on the authority thereof, but also to deliver the said tract of land and keep it free against everybody from any claim, challenge or incumbrance which anybody might intend to create, as well as to have this sale and conveyance approved and confirmed by the remainder of the co-owners for whom they are trustees; all this, under the obligations required by law, in good faith, without evil intent or deceit. In testimony whereof this has been confirmed by our usual signature and our seal appended thereto. Done on the aforesaid Island of Manhattan, at Fort Amsterdam, the 3d day of June, A. D. 1631.

This was the first purchase from the Indians of land embraced in the Pennsylvania province. Three years afterward an order was given by the West India Company to Arent Corssen, commissary of Fort Nassu (which was on the Delaware, near Gloucester), to purchase land on the Schuylkill, on which a fort was afterwards erected. Corssen obtained from the chiefs the following conveyance:

"We, the subscribers, Amattehooren, Alebackinne, Sinquees, and chiefs over the portions of the tracts of land lying about and on the Schuylkill called Armaenveruis, declare that after a proper and deliberate consideration, we have sold to Arent Corssen, the Schuylkill and adjoining lands for certain cargoes, for which we were not paid in full but for which we are fully satisfied at present; therefore, we, the above chiefs, with this, give full and irrevocable authority and power, and confirm the said purchase and are prepared at all times to stand forth and clear the same of all attempts and claims and all intentions by anybody. Passed thus, and in token of the truth, by us, natives subscribed in presence of the above-named witnesses. Done at Fort Beversrede, the Delaware, N. N."

At a later period, 1651, Governor Printz, the head of the Swedish colony, having blocked up the passage of the Dutch to Fort Nassau by water, entered into another treaty with the Indians for the land lying between Maniqua's Kihl and the river as far as Bambo Hook. Acrelius says "that agreement was the only one which had yet been made in the name of the states-general and the West India Company." But he also declares that this land had already been sold by the Indians to the Swedes.

Another purchase was made by Hudde an agent of the West India Company, in 1646, that requires notice. He recived a letter, says Hazard, probably from the director general of the company, in which he "was imperiously commanded to purchase some land from the savages, which was situated on the west shore, about a mile distant from Nassau to the north." Accordingly, "I took possession of that spot on the 8th following, and erected on it the arms of the company, and, as the proprietor was not at home, I was obliged to delay the conclusion of the purchase till the 25th of the same month.

After the purchase was accomplished, the original proprietor went with me to the spot and assisted in fixing the arms of the company to a pole which was fixed in the ground on the limits. Shortly after this, several freemen made preparations to build on this newly acquired possession."

These are the only purchases that the Dutch are known to have made of the Indians of land embraced in the province of Pennsylvania.

We will next describe what disposition the Dutch made of their possessions. The government of the Dutch on the river was established by the appointment of John Paul Jacquet as vice director and commander in chief, who was directed "in granting lands above all things to take care that a community of at least sixteen persons resided together, or so many families; and to prevent coveting land required for the present, instead of one-tenth to be paid per morgen, only twelve stivers per annum." It may be added that morgen is a Dutch land measure equivalent to about two acres. Smith, in his history of Delaware county, says that during the brief occupation of the Dutch it does not appear that any grants of land were made within the limits of Delaware county. But elsewhere says: "Many patents are recorded as having been granted by Governor Stuyvesant for lands along the Delaware, notably in the vicinity of Newcastle. The jealousy and hostility of the Dutch authorities toward the Swedes and Finns and the anxiety to dispossess them of their lands and concentrate them in villages, may account for the small number of grants within the limits of Delaware county at this time." On August 4, 1663, a large tract of land in Calcoon Hook was granted by Governor Stuyvesant to Erick Nicholsen and three others. The return of the survey by Marreties Hook by Captain Edmund Cantwell, dated July 27, 1675, to Charles Jansem and others, recites that the land "was formerly granted unto the said persons in the time of the Dutch government." Smith also says that probably Jacob Hendrickson and five others mentioned by him, of Chester and Chichester, obtained titles to their lands under the Dutch government.

Several patents are still existing of these grants. One of them was to Abraham Plank and three others, for 100 morgens of land on the South river, opposite Reedy Island.

"We, William Kieft, director-general and council, on behalf of Their High Mightinesses, the lords-state general of the United Netherlands, His Higness of Orange and the noble lords-directors of the incorporated West India Company, residing in New Netherland, attest and declare herewith, that we have to-day, date underwritten, granted and given permission to Abraham Planck, Symon Root, Jan Andriesen and Peter Harmensen, that they may establish themselves on the South river of New Netherland and take possession of lands, situate on said river obliquely opposite to a little island called 't Vogele sant (Birds' sandbank). Of which lands they have permission to take as their property one hundred morgens of land, to establish there four bouweries or plantations and to cultivate them within a year from date or earlier, if possible, on pain of losing their rights thereto on condition and stipulation that the aforesaid persons, or those who may hereafter obtain their interests, shall acknowledge the noble lords-directors as their lords and masters under the sovereignty of this High Might., and further shall, with their families, submit to all such orders and privileges, as the excellencies have already proclaimed or may proclaim hereafter; therefore, we constitute the aforesaid Abraham Planck, Symon Root, Jan Andriesen and Peter Harmensen in our stead as real and actual possessors of the aforesaid 100 morgens, giving them full power, authority and special direction that they may enter upon, cultivate and make use of the aforesaid land, situate on the west side of the South river, as they would do with their own inherited land and property, without that we, the grantors, in our aforesaid quality, shall have, reserve or keep in the least degree any particle of interest or authority in or over the aforesaid 100 morgens of land, but we desist from it for the benefit of the aforesaid now and forever, promising further to hold, fulfill and execute this conveyance firmly, inviolately and irrevocably, all subject to the obligations required by law. In testimony whereof this has been signed and confirmed by us with the impression of our seal in red wax appended. Done at Fort Amsterdam. The aforesaid persons were promised that when they required in the future more land than is stated above, it should be granted to them, provided that they shall build dwelling houses on the land and lose their title to it if they abandon it. It was signed William Kieft; below stood: By order of the Honorable Director General and Council of New Netherland, Cornelis van Tienhoven, Secretary, 1646."

A considerable number of Dutch patents were granted, for after the grant was made to the Duke of York Governor Nicholls, who first commanded under the duke's government, directed that all the former patents granted in the time of the Dutch government should be brought in for examination and that new ones should be issued for them. Subsequently another decree of the same character was issued. Of this, more will be said in another place. These facts clearly show that the Dutch did make numerous grants during the time they were in possession of the land embraced in the Pennsylvania province.

Some more important transfers may be noticed. One of these was Sawmendal, the land purchased by Bodyn and his associates, to the West India Company, in 1835. They agree "to surrender, as they do hereby, their two colonies named Swanandal, in New Netherland, together with the jurisdictions, dignities, lands, rights and dependencies thereunto belonging which they there, by virtue of their two distinct sealed patents obtained before the council of New Netherland, resident on the island of Manhattan, dated July 15, 1630, and June 3, 1631, in pursuance of letters of conveyance passed by Queskakous and Ensanckes, Sickonesyns, and inhabitants of the villages, and the other by Sawotbouc, Wiewyt, Penhacky and others, appearing on the aforesaid date, both situate on the South river, as well as on the south hook of the bay, as on the east side of the river, with all such houses, buildings, out-houses as they or their servants may have purchased, erected or brought there, none excepted, to trade with these, together with their own free goods, without reserving therein any right of action, placing such property from henceforward in full possession of the aforesaid company according to the aforesaid original letters, which they do hereby deliver over, consenting at all times to grant to aforesaid company, etc., when required, further conveyance, etc."

The West India Company, having become embarrassed, sold to the city of Amsterdam that part of the South river extending from the west side of Christina-Kill to the mouth of the bay "and so far as the Minquas' land extended." The name of the city of Amsterdam was changed to New Amstel and subsequently to New Castle. At a later period the river was also surrendered to the city.

The English had never yielded their claim to the country and, in 1674, all of the Dutch possessions were granted to the Duke of York, the brother of Charles II. He immediately took steps to obtain possession of them. New York was captured and the Dutch colonies on the Delaware soon yielded to his superior force. Charles II also declared war against the states-general of Holland, and on its termination the Dutch colonies were transferred to the crown of England and thus all rights of the Dutch on the Delaware came to an end. The action of the duke concerning titles to the lands will be considered hereafter.

Sweeden was not long behind the Dutch in getting a foothold on the Delaware. Indeed, it has been said that to the crown of Sweden belongs the credit of establishing the first permanent settlement on the western shores of the Delaware and of extinguishing the Indian title to any portion of it. During the reign of Gustavus Adolphus, a commercial company was incorporated with the exclusive right for twelve years from the first of May, 1627, to traffic beyond the Straits of Gibraltar, with liberty to make treaties with foreign chiefs, castles, etc. After the death of Gustavus, his chancellor, Oxenstiern, renewed the patent of the company, June 26, 1633. Ignoring the claims of the English and Dutch, the Swedish Company, in March, 1638, planted a colony near the site of the present city of Wilmington, under the direction of Peter Minit, who had previously been in the employ of the West India Company and also director general of New Netherlands. It is said that the Swedes had obtained the right to the region by a grant from the English government, but no record has been preserved of any transfer. At all event, the English disregarded entirely the Swedish title to the land. Soon after the Swedes had landed at Wilmington, a place was selected for a fort, which was called Fort Christina. An Indian sachem lived here. "Minit appeared and gave him a kettle and other small articles, and requested of him as much ground as to enable him to put up a house and also as much land as was contained within 'six trees,' which the sachem sold Minit, who promised half the tobacco which would grow upon it, which however, the sachem says, he never gave him."

Soon afterward the Swedes purchased a large quantity of land from the Indians. It was on the western side of the river from the point called cape Inlopen, or Hinlopen, to the falls called Santickan, or Trenton falls. Posts were driven into the ground as landmarks and were seen in their places sixty years afterward. A deed was prepared for the land, written in Dutch, as the Swedes were not yet able to interpret the language of the Indians. To this deed the Indians subscribed their names and marks. This was sent to Sweden for preservation. A map was made of the land, and of the river Delaware, with its tributaries, islands and points, and which exists in the royal archives in Sweden. Subsequently, another purchase was made on the west side of the river, or rather a purchase was made with extensive additions. By this second conveyance land was acquired, stretching from Cape Hinlopen to the falls of the Delaware and westward to the great falls in the Susquehanna river, near the mouth of Conewago creek. The tract extended twelve Swedish, or ninety-three English, miles into the interior of the country. In Acrelius' History of New Sweden much is said concerning the treaty made with the Indians for which this land was conveyed. The following is a tracing taken from Acreliue, fixing the western boundary of the Swedes on the Susquehanna.

This was prepared by S. W. Mifflin, who has made the following remarks in relation to it:

"You will perceive that there are two Conewago creeks, one on each side of the river; that on the east side is much the smaller stream and forms the boundary between Lancaster and Dauphin counties. The falls begin on a line directly opposite the mouth of this stream. They lie on both sides of the barren island which divides the river, and extend about three-quarters of a mile down the river—not quite so far down as the mouth of the western stream. The height of the fall is fifteen feet, and the channel, though very rough, is not considered dangerous for rafts when skillfully handled. York Haven, the nearest point to the falls, is about eleven miles from York and fourteen from Columbia, being about half way between Columbia and Harrisburg."

The mode of purchasing land from the Indians has been thus described. Both parties set their names and marks under the contract. Two witnesses were also taken by the Swedes. When these made oath that they were informed concerning the transaction and had seen the payment the purchase is regarded as valid, if the kings or chiefs of the Indians signed the contract in the presence of a number of their people, then it was regarded as correct on their side. Payments were made in needles, scissors, knives, axes, guns, together with blankets and other wearing apparel.

The Sweedish governors at first had no authority directly for making grants of land. They were, therefore, made by the Swedish crown, and many of them were a reward for special services which were often of a military character.

To encourage buyers of land and advance the settlement of the country, the governor at Upsala, in 1654, declared that "any one who desires to purchase any land situate in New Sweden, either from the company or from the savages and who will acknowledge like a subject, our jurisdiction, shall enjoy for the land purchased the privileges of allodial nobility for himself and his heirs, with perpetual possession, while they may be sure that they shall either be included in the company or retain outside of it the franchises above mentioned." There is no evidence that any settlers availed themselves of these privileges prior to the termination of the Swedish rule.

The Swedes and Dutch were from the outset jealous of one another, and each contended that the other had no rights to the land. The Dutch especially were opposed to the Swedes, and endeavored to forbid them from making purchases of the Indians, or in any manner from securing title to the soil. The Swedes, on the other hand, claimed that they had the first right and, in truth, they made the first purchase from the Indians. The deeds given by the Indians to both Swedes and Dutch were, to some extent, for the same land. When Governor Printz, of the Swedish colony, had blocked the passage of the Hollanders to Fort Nassau, which was farther up the river, the Dutch, as we have seen, entered into a treaty with the Indians for the land lying between Manuqua's Kill and the river as far down as Bambo Hook, and concluded the purchase on the 19th of July, 1651. Acrelius says that that was the only purchase made by the Dutch from the Indians, but he adds that this land had already been sold to the Swedes, and Governor Printz protested against its re-sale. The statement, however, of the Swedish historian, is incorrect, for several other purchases were made that have been described.

Some of the Swedish grants will now be described. One of them is from the queen, Christina, to Governor Printz. By this grant there was conveyed to him and his lawful issue "the place in New Sweden called Theneko or Nye Gotheborg, to have and to hold, to him and his lawful issue, as a perpetual possession."

Another is to Captain H. A. Besh and his wife for "a tract of land situated in New Sweden, called Markus Huuk, running up to Up-land's Kyhl, with all the appurtenances belonging to the same, whether in wet or dry land." This grant is supposed to have included land fronting the river between Chickester and Chester creeks.

Another is to Lieutenant Schute and his wife for "a tract of country in New Sweden, viz: Mockorhuthig's Kyl, Alkarokungh, Kinsessing, and Aronametz Kyl, as far as the river, with the small islands which lie adjacent, namely: Karinge and Kinsessing, together with Passuming, with the appurtenances." "The grant to Lieutenant Schute," says Smith, "comprised lands between Darby creek and the Schuylkill, extending to the river. It also included Passayunk. Mockorhuthig's Kyl is probably synonymous with Moohorhootink, an Indian name for Darby creek above its junction with Cobb's. The portion of Darby between these two creeks was called Moohoorooton, or Moherhuting. Alkarohungh is evidently identical with Karakung, an early name of Cobb's creek and of the region in that vicinity. This name and that of Aronametz kyl have been omitted from the translation given by Hazard." Smith says, "recitals in subsequent patents and other records indicate that several of the early Swedish settlers obtained title to lands within our limits, but whether by patent from the government or, as is more probable, by virtue of the right acquired by settlement and improvement, is not now known."

The English government never ceased to lay claim to the lands along the Delaware, and in the grant to the Duke of York no exception was made to the Swede or Dutch holdings. The Duke of York conveyed his title to William Penn, who thus became the owner of the Dutch possessions. He offered the Swedes ten thousand acres of land sixty miles farther up in the country with one bushel wheat yearly rental per 100 acres, that they might have more room and live together. But Acrelius says that his object was to get the homes of the Swedes for his Quakers and few, therefore, accepted the offer. As long as they remained in their homes there was not much dissatisfaction, but when some of them sold their titles to others who were less friendly to the Quakers, a public outcry was raised. These complaints finally ended in a petition to the Pennsylvania Assembly, in 1709, with the request that their old deeds might be restored, together with the excess of rents that had been wrongfully taken. The complaints were transmitted to Penn, who sent them to the Swedish minister, who was then residing in London. The complaints ceased for a time, but Penn's land commissioners continued to question the Swedish titles through the Duke of York, and to clip pieces from their lands, to put on high bushel wheat yearly rent per 100 acres, that they might have assembly, in 1722, that the proprietor, through his commissioners, had interfered with the lands of the Swedes, especially within the last five years, and also with the lands of those who had the same titles or were the oldest English inhabitants in the country, and had acquired their rights from the English authorities before Penn's time and which had also been confirmed by a seven years' undisputed possession. The assembly communicated the complaint to William Keith, the governor. To this complaint the commissioners answered that the titles the people had of the Duke of York had never been called in question; that the Swedes had no cause for their complaints considering the favor with which they were regarded by the proprietor, and, although aliens to the English government, they were in possession of the best lands on the Delaware at the time of Penn's arrival, and had been confirmed in their possession without further investigation. They added that as the proprietor was now dead the matter could not be investigated further, and Acrelius says that nothing more was ever heard on the subject. We may, therefore, infer that the Swedes were left in possession of their lands and that no further attempts were made on the part of the commissioners or others to obtain unlawful possession of them.

In 1664 Charles II granted all of the lands in question to his brother, James, Duke of York and Albany, who lost no time in taking possession of them. This grant also included the lands in possession of the Dutch in New York. Colonel Richard Nicholls was commissioned deputy governor of the new province, and Fort Amsterdam was surrendered to him August 29, 1664. The settlement on the west side of the Delaware, although not included in the Duke's patent, came under his control by the surrender of New Amstel a month later. From that time to the granting of Penn's charter they were considered as an appanage of the government of New York. The Duke was clothed with the powers of a feudal sovereign, with authority to make laws, dispense justice and dispose of lands under such conditions as he might impose. A code of laws was established by him for governing the newly acquired territories that were commonly known as the duke's laws. By these the tenure of land was from the Duke of York. All persons were required to surrender their old grants and take out new patents from the government. All conveyances were to be recorded in New York. The first patents under the duke's government were signed by Governor Nicholls, who was succeeded by Colonel Francis Lovelace in August, 1668.

Several patents signed by the governors of New York, commissioned by the Duke for that purpose, were granted for lands within the limits of Delaware county. They were located along the river. The grantees were already in possession of the land and the deeds referred to former patents granted in the time of the Dutch government. A quit-rent of one bushel of wheat yearly for every 100 acres was reserved to his majesty. This was the first establishment of quit-rents in Pennsylvania.

The order above mentioned, requiring persons to surrender their patents and take out new ones, was neglected, for the court of assize, at a session held in September, 1666, ordered a decree relating to the subject. After reciting the neglect of persons to bring in their patents and "also taking into their serious consideration that several towns and persons within this government as well English as Dutch to hold their lands and houses upon the conditions of being subjects to the States of the United Belgic provinces, which is contrary to the allegiance due his majesty, they do, therefore, order that all grants or patents whatsoever formerly made shall be brought in to be confirmed or renewed by authority of His Royal Highness, the Duke of York." The order further declared that all who failed to comply with this order within a specified period should not have liberty to plead their land grants and which, therefore, should be regarded as invalid to all intents and purposes.

Lovelace was succeeded by Major Edmund Andros and, soon after his arrival on July 1, 1674, he issued a proclamation "confirming all former grants, privileges or concessions heretofore granted, and all estates legally possessed by any under His Royal Highness before the late Dutch government," to his arrival were to remain undisturbed. During the administration of Andros some patents were granted and many regulations were adopted concerning the disposition of lands along the Delaware, the preservation of records and the collection of quit-rents.

In 1681 Charles II granted a charter to William Penn of all the land embraced in the State of Pennsylvania except that portion north of the 42d degree of latitude. The first section of this charter contains the following description of the bounds of the province:

"All That tract of Land in America Called by the name of Pennsylvania as the same is bounded on the East by Delaware River, from twelve miles distance Northwards of New Castle Towne, unto the three and fortieth degree of Northern Latitude, if the said River doth extend soe farr Northwards. And if the said River shall not extend soe farr Northward then by the said River so farr as it doth extend. And from the head of the said River, the Eastern Bounds to be determined by a Meridian Line to bee drawn from the head of the said River, unto the said Three and Fortieth Degree; the said Province to extend Westward five degrees in Longitude, to be Computed from the said Eastern bounds; and to bee bounded on the North by the beginning of the Three and Fortieth Degree of Northern Latitude; and on the South by a Circle drawn at Twelve miles distance from New Castle Northwards and Westwards unto the beginning of the Fortieth Degree of Northern Latitude, and then by a streight Line Westwards, to the limits of the Longitude above mentioned."

By this charter William Penn and his heirs and assigns were constituted the true and absolute proprietary of the province, saving allegiance to the crown; and to the territory was given the name of Pennsylvania, or Penn's Woods. By the charter the land was "to be holden of us, our heirs and successors, kings of England, as of our castle of Windsor in the county of Berks, in free and common socage, by fealty only for all services and not in capite or by knight service, yielding and paying therefore to us, our heirs and successors, two beaver skins to be deliver at our castle at Windsor, on the first day of January of every year, and also the fifth part of all gold and silver ore which shall from time to time happen to be found within the limits aforesaid, clear of all charges." The proprietor was authorized to enact laws, with the assent of the free men of the province; to appoint judges and other officers; to divide the country into towns, hundreds and counties and to incorporate boroughs and cities. By the seventeenth and eighteenth sections absolute power was granted to Penn, his heirs and assigns "to assign, alien, grant, demise or enfeof of the premises, so many and such parts and parcels to him or them that shall be willing to purchase the same, as they shall think fit, to have and to hold to them, the said person or persons willing to take and purchase, their heirs or assigns, in fee simple or fee tail, or for the term of life, lives or years, to be held of the said William Penn, his heirs or assigns as of the said seignior of Windsor by such services, customs or rents as shall seem meet to the said William Penn, his heirs or assigns, and not immediately of us, our heirs or successors. The statute made in the parliament of Edward, the son of King Henry, late king of England, our predecessor, commonly called the statute of Quia Emptores Terrarum, lately published in our kingdom of England, in anywise notwithstanding." And by section nineteen licenses were also granted to his heirs. "License was granted to the proprietary and his heirs and likewise to all and every person or persons to whom the said William Penn or his heirs should thereafter grant any estate or inheritance as aforesaid, to erect any parcels of land within the province aforesaid, into manors, by and with the license to be first had and obtained for that purpose, under the hand and seal of the said William Penn, or his heirs, and in every of the said manors, to have and to hold a court baron, with all things whatsoever which to a court baron do belong." One of the first steps taken by Penn was to acquire the title possessed by the Duke of York, whose ownership has already been described. This was done by a deed dated August 20, 1682. By this deed the Duke conveyed to Penn all his title in the province of Pennsylvania and, by subsequent deeds, all his interest in the territory within a circle of twelve miles radius about New Castle, extending southward to Cape Henlopen, which now forms the State of Delaware.

Thus Penn acquired a title to his province by charter from the king and by deed from the Duke of York. As the title of the Dutch and Swedes has been acquired from the Duke of York, Penn's ownership of the province became complete.

Having secured his title, Penn published an account of the province for the information of those who might desire to go thither, in which conditions were set forth, first, to purchasers, second, to those who might desire to rent land and, third, to servants. In regard to the first, the shares were to contain 5,000 acres free from any Indian encumbrance. The price was to be 100 pounds and one English shilling quit-rent for 100 acres. The quit-rent was not to begin until after 1684. The renters were to pay one penny per acre and the quantity was not to exceed 200 acres. Masters were allowed fifty acres per head and fifty acres to their servants when their time expired.

Penn also published his conditions and concessions to purchasers, in which certain rules of settlement were prescribed and directions for treating the Indians. Among other things it was agreed that when any number of purchasers, more or less, whose number of acres amounted to 5,000 or 10,000 desired to be together in a lot, their land might be thus selected.

The first conveyances by the proprietor were by deeds of lease and release, which were executed in England. The grantees were called first purchasers and the grants, which had peculiar privileges attached to them, were called old rights. They amounted to more than 500,000 acres. Patents of this character were granted by Penn after his arrival in this country and by the commissioners of the land office to whom his interests were confided. The patent was a deed of grant in fee simple of the lands described therein. All the preparatory measures of application, warrant, survey and acceptance were merged in the patent, and the title of the patentees as against the proprietary or commonwealth became complete in law and equity.

In many cases a warrant was issued to a purchaser for a large tract of land, who paid for it, but who took no conveyance therefor. Afterwards, through the land office, this was sold in smaller parcels and conveyances were given directly to the purchasers. The land office thus acted as the agent of the original purchaser in selling his land and receiving the purchase money.

With respect to the Welsh, 40,000 acres were sold to them as a body and afterwards conveyances were made to them of separate portions of individuals until the entire amount was thus conveyed.

The grants were of some manor. For example, the patents for land in Delaware county were "as of our Manor of Spring Towne." The tenure was a species of feudal tenure called socage, or fixed rent, reserving the quit-rent, which could be purchased to a small amount. The quit-rent reserved was one shilling per thousand acres in patents to the first purchasers or to those deriving title from them. This was called the common rent. The second class of purchasers who had taken up lands or warrants at the yearly rent of one penny per acre were called renters, and when they took out a patent the same rate was continued as a quit-rent. This was called a new rent. For lands whose title had been acquired from the Duke of York, in some cases, the old rent of a bushel of wheat was retained. The grantees in these patents were termed old renters.

Frequently renters at one penny per acre neglected to take out patents but office rights that were acquired in this way or by informal orders or agreements of proprietary officers indicating their assent to the appropriation of land by individuals, gave an equitable title that was often transferred from one to another and became the foundation of the other titles.

The quit-rents were the origin of the present ground rents. They were very unpopular with the colonists and a source of continual disagreement between them and the proprietor.

One of the first acts of Penn was to naturalize all the settlers who were in the province at the time of his arrival and thus enable them to acquire valid titles to whatever land they might purchase.

Notwithstanding the title he had acquired by virtue of his charter and deed from the Duke of York, he also sought to extinguish all the titles the Indians possessed to the lands included within his charter. Numerous deeds or treaties of this character were made with them from time to time. The same land was purchased from them on several occasions in consequence of their dissatisfaction over the purchase price, usually consisting of clothing and implements of various kinds. At the earliest treaty, made under the elm tree at Kensington in December, 1682, it is not supposed that any lands were purchased. It was simply a friendly meeting.

The first conveyance from the Indians was on the 15th of July, 1682, when William Markham, the deputy governor, made a treaty for a section of land lying along the Delaware. It has thus been described:

"Beginning at a certain white oak, in the land now in the tenure of John Wood, and by him called the Grat-stones, over against the fall of Delaware river, and so from thence up the said river side to a corner marked Spruce tree, with the letter P, standing by the Indian path that leads to the Indian town called Playiwsky, and near the head of a creek called Towissinon, and from thence westward to the creek called Neshammony's creek, and along the said Neshammony's creek unto the river Delaware, alias Makerisk-kitton, and so bounded by the said river to the said first-mentioned white oak, in John Wood's land, and all of those lands called or known by the several names of Matiniounsk island, Sapassineks island and Oreskons island lying or being in the said river Delaware, etc."

This deed was afterwards ratified on the first of August, 1682, by several other Indian chiefs.

The first large purchase was on the 17th of September, 1718. The form of conveyance was a deed of release from several Delaware Indian chiefs, for all the land lying between the Delaware and Susquehanna rivers, and from Duck creek to the Lehigh hills. They also stated that they had seen and heard diverse deeds of sale read unto them, given by chiefs of the Delaware Indians from ancestors and predecessors who were the owners of the lands by which they had granted the same to William Penn and were satisfied and content. This boundary on the northerly side was an indefinite one and led to no little contention. The officers of the proprietary claimed that the Lehigh hills stretched away from the forks of the Delaware to the hills of the Susquehanna, near Harrisburg. The Indians, on the other hand, asserted that the line passed from Lehigh above Oley and reached no further. Under their claim, the Tulpehocken lands, situated in Lancaster county, were excluded. It was agreed that the Indians might remain, but they were not to disturb the people on these lands. This dispute concerning the boundary ultimately led to a new treaty and grant that will be further described.

The lands included in the grant of 1718 had been in part conveyed on several occasions. These earlier grants were still more indefinite in extent, and in several cases conveyances were made of the same portion from different parties claiming ownership in them. These conveyance will now be briefly described. The first of them was on the 3d of June, 1683, from five Indian chiefs who disposed of their lands lying between Pemmapecka and Neshaminy,* and to run backward "two day's journey with a horse up into the country as the said river doth go." By another deed of the same date two other chiefs released the same territory to Penn, omitting the two days' journey. It may be remarked that the northern limits of this purchase were beyond the land conveyed by the deed of 1718. Two days afterward an Indian called Wingebone conveyed all his lands lying on the west side of the Schuylkill river, beginning from the first falls. On the 14th of July two other Indian shackamakers conveyed their land lying between the Schuylkill and Chester rivers, beginning on the west side of the Schuylkill at a place called Conshohocken, and from there by a westerly line to the Chester river. On the same day four other shackamakers conveyed all their lands lying between Schuylkill and Dublin creeks, as far as the Conshohocken hills to the Schuylkill river, and from there by a northwest line to Dublin creek. Smith, in describing this conveyance, remarks that the true situation of the Conshohocken hill cannot, perhaps, be ascertained. It could not, however, be very far up the Schuylkill for the reason that the northwest line mentioned in the conveyance from it could not strike Dublin creek.

On the 10th of September of the same year, another Indian granted one-half of all the land lying between Susquehanna and Delaware, on the Susquehanna side, with the promise to sell the next spring, on his return from hunting, his right to the other half. The next month, October 18th, another Indian, calling himself the owner of lands from Delaware river to Chesapeake bay, as far as the falls of the Susquehanna, conveyed his right in them to Penn. The next year there were two other conveyances from the Indians, one of them is dated June 3, 1684, for all the lands on the Perkioming; the other, dated June 7th, for all the land on both sides of Dublin creek.

*The former of these creeks has since been called Pennypack and Dublin.

The next year there were several other conveyances. The first of these is dated July 30th, from four Indian shacamakers, for land lying between Dublin and Chester creeks, beginning at the Conshockan hill, on the Schuylkill, and extending from thence in a parallel line to Chester creek by a southwesterly course and from the Conshockan hill to Dublin creek by the same parallel line northeasterly and along the Dublin creek as far as it extends northwesterly "back into the woods to make two full days' journey as far as a man can go in two days, from the said section of the parallel line at Pemmapecka and beginning also at the parallel at Chester creek and from there as far up the creek as it extends, and thence northwesterly back into the woods to make up two full days' journey, as far as a man can go in two days, from the said section of the said parallel line at Chester creek." On the 2d of October, 1685, other Indian shackamakers made another grant of all the land from Duck creek to Upland, near Chester creek, along up the west side of Delaware river and between the two creeks 'backwards as far as a man could ride in two days with a horse.' On the 20th of August, 1686, there was another conveyance, called the "walking purchase," of which more will be said in another place.

On the 15th of June, 1692, several other Indian chiefs conveyed another tract of land to Penn, lying between Neshaminy and Poquessing and the river Delaware and "extending backwards to the utmost bounds of the province." On the 5th of July, 1697, the great sachem, Taminy, his brother and son, made a conveyance to Penn of all the land lying between Dublin and Neshaminy creeks "extending in length from the river Delaware so far as a horse can travel in two summer days, and to carry its breath according as the several courses of the said two creeks will admit, and when the said creeks do so branch that the branches or bodies thereof cannot be discovered, then the tract of land hereby granted shall stretch forth upon a direct course on each side, and so carry on the full breadth to the extent of the length thereof."

These conveyances included a considerable portion of the land subsequently covered by the deed of 1718, which has already been described. It will be noticed that most of the conveyances were for land along the Delaware and running into the interior on lines that were quite indefinite. In several cases in which deeds were given for the same land, the reason was, no doubt, that other parties than the first grantor also claimed a right or ownership in them, and Penn, or his representatives, in order to settle all disputes took new conveyances. In the course of a few years he had extinguished the Indian titles to an extensive tract.

The next considerable purchase was by two treaties on the 11th and 25th of October, 1736. The first of these treaties was with the deputies of the Five Nations, who were represented by an agent named Conrad Weiser. By this deed Penn acquired title to the land lying on both sides of the Susquehanna, extending eastward as far as the head of the branches or springs that run into the Susquehanna "and all the lands lying on the west side of the river to the setting of the sun, and to extend from the mouth of the said river northward by the same" to the Blue mountains. On the 25th of October, as before mentioned, the chiefs made another conveyance of the same land. After describing the land it is added that the intent of the deed is to convey "all the lands lying within the bounds and limits of the government of Pennsylvania, beginning eastward on the river Delaware as far northward as the side ridge or chain of endless mountains as they cross the country of Pennsylvania from the eastward to the west."

This conveyance embraced a large tract, a considerable portion of which had been previously sold and conveyed. These conveyances may be briefly described.

Forty years before, in January, 1696, Thomas Dongan, formerly governor of New York, conveyed to William Penn a tract of land that he had purchased from the Indians, lying on both sides of the Susquehanna river, "beginning at the mountains or head of the said river and running as far as, and into, the bay of Chesapeake which the said Dongan purchased laterof, or had given him by, the Susquehanna Indians." This deeds was confirmed September 13, 1700, by two kings, or shackamakers, of the Susquehanna Indians. It will be observed that in the deed of September, 1718, which has been described, the land beyond its boundaries formerly purchased from the Indians was released to them, and consequently a portion of the land included in the Dongan purchase was by the operation of that deed also released to them. This construction was put on the conveyance by the Indians, but the agents of the proprietary were not inclined to adopt it. Consequently a dispute arose concerning the occupation of the land included in the Dongan purchase. The dispute was principally on the part of the Conestogoes. It was, however, settled by another deed or treaty with the Indians in 1722. This deed gave very indefinite boundaries, and simply included land on both sides of the Susquehanna river. It is said that Penn's object was to secure the river through the whole extent of the province, and thus protect it from the pretensions of the adjoining provinces. So desirous was he of acquiring as perfect title as possible that the very next year, April 23, 1701, Governor Dongan's deed was confirmed by the Susquehanna Indians.

Five years after the treaty between Sir William Keith and the Conestogoes in July, 1727, another treaty was made at Philadelphia between Governor Gordon and the deputies of the Five Nations. At this interview the Governor, in answer to the deputies who said he had sent for them and made an offer to sell lands, told them that Governor Penn had through Colonel Dongan already bought of the Five Nations the lands on the Susquehanna; that the chiefs of the Five Nations had themselves confirmed the former grant and absolutely released all pretensions to these lands. Nevertheless, the dispute between the Indians and the agents of the proprietary concerning these lands continued until September 7, 1732, when another grant was made including the Dongan grant and the tract lying to the northeast of it. This tract is described as lying on or near the river Schuylkill, or any of its branches between the Lehigh hills and the Blue mountains which cross the Schuylkill about thirty miles above the Lehigh hills, and all land lying within these bounds and between the branches of the Delaware river on the eastern side of the land, and the branches or streams running into the Susquehanna on the western side of the land granted. "That is to say, all these lands situated, lying and being on the said river Schuylkill and the branches thereof between the mountain called Lechay to the south and the Blue hills or mountains on the north, and between the branches of the Delaware river on the east and the waters falling into the Susquehanna river on the west." This deed was further confirmed by a deed of release on the 20th of August, 1733, and also by another deed on the 12th of July, 1742.

On the 22d of August, 1749, another large purchase was made of the Indians, described as follows:

"Beginning at the hills or mountains called in the language of the Five Nation Indians Tyanuntasachta, or endless hills, and by the Delaware Indians Kekactany hills, on the east side of the river Susquehanna, being in the northwest line or boundary of the tract of land formerly purchased by the said proprietaries from the said Indian nations, by their deed of the 11th of October, 1736, and from thence running up the said river by the several courses thereof to the first or nearest mountain to the north side or mouth of the creek called in the language of the said Five Nations Indians Camaguy, and in the language of the Delaware Indians Maghoinoy, and from thence extending by a direct or straight line to be run from the said mountain on the north side of the said creek to the main branch of the Delaware river, at the north side of the creek called Lechawachsein, and from thence to return across Lechawachsein creek aforesaid down the river Delaware by the several courses thereof to the Kekachtany hills aforesaid, and from thence by the range of said hills to the place of beginning, as more fully appears by a map annexed; and also all the parts of the rivers Susquehanna and Delaware from shore to shore, which are oposite to said lands, and all the islands in said river, etc.”

Smith says that this purchase is distinctly marked by boundaries that cannot be mistaken. It appears that the white people had moved further onward into the Juniata valley and by this treaty were to be removed. Proclamations were accordingly issued requiring them to leave their lands, but these were disregarded.

There was another grant of August 12, 1686, known as the “walking purchase,” that occasioned more controversy than any other grant except that of 1754, and which formed a part of the subsequent grants of 1718, 1736 and 1749. The boundary of this grant may be thus described: “Beginning upon a line formerly laid out from a corner spruce tree by the river Delaware (Makeerikkitton), and from thence running along the ledge or foot of the mountains, west-north-east to a corner white oak, marked with the letter P, standing by the Indian path that leadeth to an Indian town called Playwickey, and from thence extending westward to Neshameny creek from which said line the said tract or tracts thereby granted doth extend itself backward into the woods, as far as a man can go in one day and an half, and bounded on the westerly side by the creek called Neshameny, or the most westerly branch thereof, and from thence by a line xxx to the utmost extent of the said one day and an half’s journey, and from thence xxx to the aforesaid river Delaware, and from thence down the several courses of the said river to the first mentioned spruce tree, etc.” It appears that this grant was not acknowledged by many of the Indians and, consequently, the occupancy of the land included within it by the colonists caused much trouble among the Indians. This controversy continued until August 25, 1737, when a new treaty was made with two of the sachems or chiefs of the Delaware Indians. In this treaty they acknowledged the grant before mentioned, of 1686, and described the tract included. They also “acknowledged that they were satisfied that the above described tract was granted by the persons above-mentioned and agreed to release to the proprietors all right to that tract and desire it may be walked, traveled or gone over by persons appointed for that purpose.” Accordingly, the grant was again walked out, but the effect was only to increase the dissatisfaction of the Indians. Thomson says that this walk extended to about thirty miles beyond the Lehigh hills, over the Kitatiny mountains. The walkers were expert and the Indians could not keep up with them. The Indians expected also that the walk would be made by the river and up its course. By the second treaty, therefore, much more land was included than by the first. The Indians continued to complain of the treatment they had received and this complaint was not ended until the purchase of 1749 which, with the purchases of 1718 and 1736, included all the land in controversy.

In 1754 another very extensive purchase was made that caused a more resentful feeling on the part of the Indians than any other, and which continued to deepen and at last expressed itself in deadly conflict. The purchase included land beginning at the Blue hills, on the west branch of the Susquehanna, and by the river a mile above the mouth of a creek called Kayarondinhagh, thence northwest and by west as far as the province extended to its western line of boundaries, thence along the western line to the south boundary of the hills, and from that point to the beginning. The purchase included far too much for the good of the colonists, for as the Indians felt that they had not enough land on which they could live they were the more willing to throw themselves into the arms of the French who, at that time were at war with the English. The Indians declared that they did not understand the points of the compass, and that they would never have agreed to the treaty if they had understood the nature of it. This grave mistake was corrected four years afterwards by releasing to the Indians a considerable portion of the land sold by them in 1754. By this conveyance the former grant was reduced to the following dimensions: "Beginning at the Kittatiny or Blue hills on the west bank of the Susquehanna river, and running thence up the said river, binding therewith to a mile above the mouth of a creek called Kaarondinah (or John Penn's creek), thence northwest and west to a creek called Buffaloe's creek, thence west to the east side of the Allegheny or Apalachian hills, binding therewith, to the south line or boundary of the said province, thence by the said south line or boundary to the south side of the Kittatiny hill, thence by the south of the said hill to the place of beginning in consideration of the said surrender and five shillings, etc. And there is a covenant not to convey the residue to any persons else than the proprietors."

Two other important grants from the Indians remain to be described. One of these is the conveyance of September 5, 1768. The boundary line began "on the east side of the east branch of the Susquehanna river, at a place called Owegy, and running with the said boundary line down the said branch on the east side thereof till it comes opposite the mouth of a creek, called by the Indians Awandac (Tawandee), and across the river and up the said creek on the south side thereof and along the range of hills called Burnett's hills by the English, and by the Indians ————, on the north side of them, to the heads of a creek which runs into the west branch of the Susquehanna, then crossing the said river and running up the same on the south side thereof, to the said west branch of Susquehanna, then crossing the said river and running up the same on the south side thereof, the several courses thereof to the fork of the same river which lies nearest to a place on the river Ohio, called the Kittanning, and from the said fork by a straight line to Kittanning aforesaid, and then down the said river Ohio by the several courses thereof to where the western bounds of the said province of Pennsylvania crosses the same river, and then with the said western bounds to the south boundary thereof, and with the south boundary aforesaid to the east side of the Allegheny hills, and with the said hills on the east side of them to the west line of a tract of land purchased by the said proprietors from the Six Nation Indians and confirmed October 23, 1758, and then with the northern bounds of that tract to the river Susquehanna, and crossing the river Susquehanna to the northern boundary line of another tract of land purchased of the Indians by deed (August 22, 1749), and then with that northern boundary line to the river Delaware at the north side of the mouth of a creek called Lechawachsein, then up the said river Delaware on the west side thereof to the intersection of it, by an east line to be drawn from Owegy aforesaid to the said river Delaware and then with that east line to the beginning at Owegy aforesaid."

The other conveyance is known as the treaty at Fort Stanwix in October, 1784. "Beginning on the south side of the river Ohio, where the western boundary of the State of Pennsylvania crosses the said river near Shingo's old town, at the mouth of Beaver creek, and thence by a due north line to the end of the forty-second and beginning of the forty-third degrees of north latitude, thence by a due east line separating the forty-second and forty-third degrees of north latitude to the east side of the east branch of the river Susquehanna, thence by the bounds of the late purchase made at Fort Stanwix, the 5th day of November, Anno Domini one thousand seven hundred and sixty-eight, as follows: "Down the said east branch of the Susquehanna, on the east side thereof, till it comes opposite to the mouth of a creek called by the Indians Awandac, and across the river and up the said creek, on the south side thereof, all along the range of hills called Burnett's hills, by the English, and by the Indians ————, on the north side of them, to the head of a creek which runs into the west branch of Susquehanna, which creek is, by the Indians, called Tyadaghton, but by the Pennsylvanians Pine creek, and down the said creek on the south side thereof to the said west branch of the Susquehanna, then crossing the said river and running up the same, on the south side thereof, the several courses thereof, to the fork of the same river, which lies nearest to the place on the river Ohio called Kittanning, and from the fork by a straight line to Kittanning aforesaid, and then down the said river Ohio, by the several courses thereof to where the western bounds of the said State of Pennsylvania crosses the same river,' at the place of beginning." At a treaty held at Fort McIntosh with the Wyandott and Delaware Indians in January 21, 1785, a deed was executed by these nations for the same land.

The Erie triangle, or the land north of the forty-second degree of latitude, was acquired at a later date. At first it was claimed by both New York and Massachusetts, and was ceded by them to the United States. By an act of the legislature, dated April 18, 1791, the Governor was authorized to purchase the land of the National Government which was done on March 3, 1792, the Indians ceded their title January 9, 1789. In their conveyance they declared that "the signing chiefs do acknowledge the right of soil and jurisdiction to and over that tract of country bounded on the south by the north line of the State of Pennsylvania, on the east by the west boundary of the State of New York, agreeable to the session of that state and Massachusetts to the United States, and on the north by the margin of Lake Erie, including Presque Isle, and all the bays and harbours along the margin of said Lake Erie, from the west boundary of Pennsylvania to where the west boundary of the State of New York may cross or intersect the south margin of the said Lake Erie, to be vested in the said State of Pennsylvania, agreeable to an act of Congress, date the 6th of June last, 1788."

By an act of April 3, 1792, a tract of land along the lake, eight miles long and three miles wide, was reserved from public sale by the State, and on which now stands the city of Erie. In this reservation was also a piece of land known as the peninsula that was included in the conveyances by the Indians and the government above-mentioned. By an act of April 18, 1795, sixty acres of land on the mainland at the entrance of the harbor that has since been known as the "garrison ground," and on which a marine hospital has been built, and thirty acres of the peninsula that were located, besides one hundred acres on any other part of it, were set apart for the use of the United States Government. These three tracts were surveyed and returned to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, but neither of them, so a legislative committee remarked in 1871, "has for many years been occupied by the general government.

The peninsula remained under the management of the State until the year 1868. Until that date various persons were appointed to watch the property and prevent depredations. (See acts of April 23, 1829, and April 8, 1833.) In 1868 it was placed under the supervision and control of the city of Erie. On February 4, 1869, this control was transferred to the Marine hospital, to which a grant had been made on the mainland by the State of a portion of the reservation before mentioned in 1867. The grant to the hospital included a "part of the garrison grounds south of the Philadelphia and Erie railway, now occupied by a small pox hospital," also the "water property in the bay of Presque Isle in front, adjoining and north of the third section of the town of Erie as originally laid out, bounded east and west by the extension of the east and west line of said third section and extending northward from the shores of said bay 1,000 feet into the same." There was also included in the grant "the lake beach, or new made land in front of the hospital grounds and not patented by the Commonwealth" (act of March 22, 1867). The supervision of the peninsula thus confided to the hospital caused much dissatisfaction, as more than 2,000 trees were cut and removed shortly afterward, which, it was feared, would have a serious effect on the harbor of Erie. Consequently, the title to the peninsula was transferred from the hospital in 1871 (act of May 11, 1871), to the United States, and by the same act an appropriation was granted to the hospital on condition that it should reconvey to the State its interest in all other grounds belonging to the institution. In 1883 (act of July 5, 1883), the hospital and grounds were tendered to the United States for a soldiers' and sailors' home, but were not accepted. Two years afterward, in 1885, a commission was appointed, who were authorized to convert the Marine hospital property into a soldiers' home, a State institution.

BOUNDARY LINES AND BOUNDARY LINE MONUMENTS.

Under the Act of 1887 provision was made for the annual examination of the boundary line monuments by the county commissioners of the counties adjacent to the line marking the limits of Pennsylvania. This law was subsequently amended so that the examinations by the county commissioners should be made only once in five years. A law has also since been passed which authorizes the Secretary of Internal Affairs to correspond with the proper authorities in adjoining states with a view of having the monuments repaired or reset or have portions of the boundary lines surveyed and relocated in case of any dispute regarding location and provision was made to defray the expenses of such work. It seems, therefore, that the Act of 1887, which provides that the boundary line monuments shall be examined and reported upon by county commissioners should be repealed, as it entails unnecessary expense on the Commonwealth. Under the act authorizing the Secretary to co-operate with the authorities of other States, the plan has been to employ the services of skilled engineers, who are not only experts in their profession, but also familiar, so far as possible, with the location of the monuments. Experience has demonstrated that it is much better to employ engineers than to have the work done by the county commissioners, who, in most, cases, have no knowledge of surveying or engineering and but little knowledge of the location of the monuments; and, in cases where it is necessary to reset monuments or relocate lines there is danger of their employing unskilled persons who are liable to make mistakes in their work. Inasmuch as the desired results can be much better obtained through the law which authorizes the Secretary of Internal Affairs to act with the authorities of other states, a bill will be prepared and introduced into the next legislature for the repeal of the Act of 1887 referred to. Probably better results will be obtained by having this work all done by engineers and many thousands of dollars of expense would be saved to the Commonwealth.

The report of last year had a detailed description of the monuments along the line between Pennsylvania and New York. Their condition was fully set forth, and in most cases photographs were taken of them, which are now on file in this department.

An examination this year by the commissioners of the monuments along the New York line would be useless if not ridiculous.

STATE WEATHER SERVICE BUREAU.

This bureau was established by the Act of May 13, 1887, and the entire control given to the Franklin Institute, of Philadelphia. The annual expense of the maintenance of the bureau has not been great. All the bills have been incurred under the direction of the Institute and under certificate from its officers have been paid by this department, the money having been drawn from the Auditor General for that purpose. It is understood that at the next session of the legislature a bill will be introduced for the establishment of an agricultural department, similar to the departments in other states and to that of the National Government. Should this be done, it would seem proper that the control of the Weather Service Bureau should be transferred to that department, as the purposes sought to be accomplished by the Bureau are largely for the benefit of the agriculturists of the Commonwealth, and with some suitable person in charge of the bureau in this department it is probable that better results would be obtained than under the present management. The report of the bureau for the year ending November 30, 1894, is submitted herewith for the information of the public. It will be of interest to those who make a study of atmospheric pressure, temperature, humidity, rainfall, wind and other meteorological phenomena. It must be understood, however, that this bureau, even in the agricultural department, in order to be a success will have to be under the control of a person who is a scientist and thoroughly skilled in all that pertains to the affairs of the bureau.

Philadelphia, December 6, 1894.

Hon. Thomas J. Stewart, Secretary of Internal Affairs, Harrisburg, Penna.;

I have the honor to enclose herewith, first, the annual report of Observer T. F. Townsend, assistant in charge of Pennsylvania State Weather Service, with Appendix A, Monthly review for 1894.

Appendix B, Weekly weather crop bulletins from April to September, 1894, inclusive.

Appendix C, Summary of the weather condition affecting the crops from March to September, 1894, inclusive.

These documents contain full details of the observations of the Pennsylvania State Weather Service.

The expenses of the service have been kept within the appropriations, and to keep it in the the same state of efficiency there will be required for the succeeding two years the same appropriation as that last made. It gives me great pleasure to testify to the zeal and assiduity of the voluntary observers whose only reward is a due acknowledgment of their services.

The officials connected with the service have performed their duties in the most satisfactory manner.

I have the honor to be,

Your very obedient servant,

W. P. TATHAM,

Chairman Committee on Meteorology, Franklin Institute, Philadelphia, Pa.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture,

Weather Bureau,

Office of the State Weather Service,

Mr. W. P. Tatham, Chairman Meteorological Committee, Franklin Institute, Philadelphia, Pa.:

Sir: I have the honor to submit the following report of the operations of the Pennsylvania State Weather Service during the year ending November 30, 1894. An average of fifty-five stations from which full meteorological reports were received and twenty-eight additional rainfall stations were maintained with but few broken records. These records were carefully compared, collated and published in the usual form in the Monthly Weather Review, as shown in Appendix A.

The monthly issue of the Review consisted of 700 copies, in addition to the supplement published in the Journal of the Franklin Institute. The accuracy of these records from reliable standard instruments, their continuity and period covered (seven years) render them sources of information of the climatological conditions of the State that are of practical value.

Temperature and rainfall normals have been deduced from the observations of the Service, and such private records as could be obtained. The latter cover various periods of time and their true value can only be determined by comparison with records from standard instruments. The temperature normals were published graphically on the maps contained in the Review from April, 1893, to March, 1894, inclusive. A full decade of records will probably be necessary to determine their accuracy. The value of such data is well understood.

Profiting by the experience of many, and with the approbation of the Meteorological Committee, a monthly form for recording original observations suggested by the National bureau, and now used by other state services, was adopted January 1, 1894. Its use has been very satisfactory, as it contains all necessary data and is a saving of both labor and time to the observers. These are important factors, for, in many instances, it was found that in order to secure voluntary aid, the necessary work of observers must be deduced to a minimum.

The recording of current temperatures has been made entirely voluntary, as the system now used by the National bureau and most of the state services for determining monthly means from the maximum and minimum temperatures, has been adopted by this service and less instruments are necessary to complete the outfit of a station since January 1, 1894. About the same results are thus obtained and less instruments are necessary to complete the outfit of a station.

The equipment now consists of a maximum and minimum thermometer, shelter for their exposure, and a rain gauge.

A few self-registering combined barograph and thermograph instruments, placed at selected stations would probably give records of much value for special investigations that are obtainable in no other way. I recommend the purchase of these instruments if suitable ones can be obtained.

The display of weather and temperature signals was maintained at about 100 stations with commendable promptness on the part of the displaymen, and with satisfaction to the public. The forecasts were telegraphed from the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh Weather Bureau offices at government expense and the flags for display were supplied by the State service. In addition to the flag display, forecasts were wired daily to the principal offices of eight different railroad companies, and by them wired to their various stations, amounting to several hundred, where they were regularly bulletined for the benefit of the public.

What is known as the "Logotype system" was introduced at eleven post offices during the past year. These offices were selected because of their good mailing facilities for distribution. The postmasters were furnished with rubber logotypes of words similar to those used in the forecasts. On receipt of the forecast telegram its contents were stamped on the back of previously addressed franked postal cards (furnished from this office) and sent out by the next mail to their various destinations where they were publicly displayed in post offices.

During the crop growing season about sixty correspondents furnished weekly reports of the effect of the weather conditions on the staple crops. These reports, from April 30 to September 17, inclusive, were compiled in a condensed form and 850 copies printed each week for general distribution.

These bulletins were regularly copied by many of the leading newspapers throughout the State, which obtained for them a large circulation.

A short summary of the general conditions was wired regularly each week to the Washington bureau which, together with those from other states, made up the National Weekly Weather Crop Bulletin. The accuracy of these reports and the confidence placed in them was manifested by their popularity and the demand for them. They are now considered one of the features of State services and are highly regarded in all sections as valuable auxiliaries to all other reports.

* Copies of these crop reports herewith, marked Appendix B, together with a summarized report on the weather conditions of the crop of the current year, marked Appendix C.

The thanks of the service are due the press and railroad companies for many courtesies and to the chief of the National Weather Bureau for his invaluable aid.

The voluntary service of the observers and crop correspondents, to whom the success of the service is largely due, are entitled to great praise for their zeal and the commendable manner in which they have co-operated.

Very respectfully,

T. F. TOWNSEND,
Observer and Assistant.

MONTHLY WEATHER REVIEW FOR DECEMBER, 1893.

Hall of the Franklin Institute,
Philadelphia, December 31, 1893.

General Review.

December's normal temperature and rainfall is about 32.8 degrees and 3.18 inches. The present month has been 0.7 degree colder than the average, and the rainfall 0.12 of an inch less.

The warmest day was the 25th, and the coldest were the 5th and 14th.

With the exception of the 8th, precipitation was reported on every day of the month from some portion of the State. General rains were numerous.

March, 1894, will complete the series of charts (twelve months) showing by isothermal lines the normal temperature of each month. Their publication will be discontinued after that date. The series should be preserved for future reference.

From January 1, 1893, to December 31, 1893, the deficiency in temperature at Philadelphia was 303 degrees; Pittsburgh, 491 degrees; York, 457 degrees, and Erie, 469 degrees.

For the same period the deficiency in precipitation at Philadelphia was 2.91; York, 8.00; Erie, 2.72, and excess at Pittsburgh, 0.36 inch.

MONTHLY WEATHER REVIEW FOR APRIL, 1894.

Hall of the Franklin Institute,
Philadelphia, April 30, 1894.

General Review.

The average temperature for April was 48.0 degrees, which is normal.

The average rainfall, 3.62 inches, is an excess of 0.34.

The warmest days were the 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 27th, 28th and 30th, and most stations report the 3d as the coldest.

Precipitation was general on the 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 10th, 11th, 19th, 20th, 21st, 22d and 28th. That of the 10th and 11th was a remarkably heavy snowstorm, being particularly severe in the interior and eastern portions of the State. Over two feet of snow fell in some sections and interrupted travel for a short time. The damage to fruit by this storm was less than at first estimated but many trees were broken and injured, and some early peaches killed.

A heavy hail, rain and thunderstorm, amounting to 5.95 inches, occurred at Somerset on the 28th.

From January 1, 1894, to April 30, 1894, the excess in temperature at Philadelphia was 338 degrees; at Erie, 395 degrees, and at Pittsburgh, 416 degrees.

For the same period the deficiency in precipitation at Philadelphia was 3.32; Erie, 3.22, and Pittsburgh, 0.54.

Precipitation.

The average precipitation for the State, for the month, 8.88 inches, is an excess of 4.79. The average would have been considerably greater but for the comparatively light rains in the extreme western portion of the State. The fall was light during the first half of the month, and although general rains occurred on the 5th, 6th and 7th the quantity was small, and by the middle of the month crops were beginning to suffer from want of moisture. General rains occurred on the 17th and 18th, becoming heavy on the 19th, and excessive on the 20th and 21st. On these last two days, the measurements amounted from 5.07 to 5.95, at four stations; 6.43 to 6.68, at six stations; 7.00 to 7.87 at ten stations, and 8.44 to 9.03 at three stations. Some of the greatest daily totals were 5.94, 5.64, 5.56 and 5.50 inches.

Forty-nine stations reported excessive rains, i. e., 2.50 inches and over in any twenty-four consecutive hours.

From the 17th to the end of the month, rains were practically continuous, ranging from light to torrential.

Some of the largest totals in inches for the month were reported from the following stations: Quakertown, 15.02; Forks of Neshaminy, 14.80; Coopersburg, 14.73; Casandria, 14.57; Somerset, 14.33; Lansdale, 14.27; West Chester, 13.82; Mauch Chunk, 13.66; Westtown, 13.40; Reading, 13.34; Point Pleasant, 13.09; Seisholtzville, 13.06; Ottsville, 12.92; Girardville, 12.69; Pottstown, 12.26; Browers Lock, 12.11, and West Philadelphia, 12.07 inches.

The least were Elwood Junction, 2.72; Greenville, 3.03; Beaver Dam, 3.70; Lock No. 4, 4.21; West Newton, 4.24, and Freeport, 4.27 inches.

The excessive rains of the 21st and 22d produced disastrous floods in many parts of the State. Towns were inundated, bridges destroyed, an immense number of logs sent adrift, railroad tracks washed out, travel delayed and many other damages incident to floods. Agricultural interests suffered severely. Many farms along the rivers and streams were completely inundated, crops washed out and the lands left covered with deposits of mud and foreign matter. Numerous farms not subject to the overflow of streams were badly washed, low lands flooded, growing crops injured by washouts and washings from hillsides, seeds rotted in the ground from cold and excessive moisture and farm work delayed by the muddy and saturated condition of the soil.

Wind and Weather.

The prevailing wind was from the west.

Average number: rainy days, 16; clear days, 9; fair days, 8; cloudy days, 14.

Barometer.

The mean pressure for the month, 29.95, is about .05 below the normal. At the United States Weather Bureau Stations, the highest observed was 30.46 at Philadelphia and Harrisburg on the 12th, and the lowest 29.53 at Erie on the 6th.

MONTHLY WEATHER REVIEW FOR JUNE, 1894.

Hall of the Franklin Institute,
Philadelphia, June 30, 1894.

General Review.

The average temperature for June was 69.6 degrees, which is about 0.6 degrees above the normal. The first half of the month was cooler than usual, and the last half warmer. The total excess of temperature during the month amounted to about 33 degrees.

The warmest days occurred on the 22d, 23d and 24th, and unusually high temperatures were recorded.

The lowest temperatures were recorded on the 6th, 7th and 8th, on which dates a few stations reported frosts, but they were not damaging.

Owing to the wet and cold, crops made slow progress until the latter half of the month, when favorable conditions prevailed.

From January 1, 1894, to June 30, 1894, the excess in temperature at Philadelphia was 412 degrees; at Erie, 491 degrees, and at Pittsburgh, 316 degrees.

For the same period the excess in precipitation at Philadelphia was 1.50, while at Erie the deficiency was 3.10 and at Pittsburgh, 4.44.

Extremely hot weather prevailed on the 1st, 19th, 20th, 28th and 29th, during which time the following high temperatures were recorded at the station named: Huntingdon, 103 degrees; Lock Haven, 102 degrees; Logania, 102 degrees; Hollidaysburg, 101 degrees; Hamburg, 101 degrees; Blooming Grove, 101 degrees; Carlisle, 100 degrees; Wilkes-Barre, 100 degrees, and Lewisburg, 100 degrees.

The extremely warm and dry weather, with high percentage of sunshine, was favorable for maturing wheat, harvesting and haying but these conditions continuing throughout the entire month, produced a general drought which was injurious to growing crops.

From January 1, 1894, to July 31, 1894, the excess in temperature at Philadelphia was 464 degrees; at Erie, 519 degrees, and at Pittsburgh, 416 degrees.

For the same period the deficiency in precipitation at Philadelphia was 2.28; Erie, 3.74, and Pittsburgh, 6.00.

MEAN TEMPERATURE RAINFALL AND PREVAILING WIND DIRECTION FOR NOVEMBER 1924

WEEKLY WEATHER CROP BULLETINS
OF THE
PENNSYLVANIA STATE WEATHER SERVICE,
UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE FRANKLIN INSTITUTE.

For the Week Ending April 30, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The temperature of the week was above the average, and the rainfall below. In most sections the ground is in good condition for growth, plowing and seeding, and the warm weather has rapidly advanced all vegetation, which is now fully up to the average.

Winter grain is generally reported in good condition, and was damaged but little during the winter. Grass is growing nicely. Oats seeding is very nearly completed, and considerable plowing done for corn and some of the early varieties planted. Quite a large acreage of potatoes is already in. The fruit prospects are more promising than was at first thought after the severe frost, and many of the trees are now in full bloom. Warm nights and sunshine are needed.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

The temperature for the past week has been very beneficial to wheat, rye and grass, and the outlook at present is generally good. Most of the oats are sown and many potatoes are planted. All vegetation has made rapid progress. Pastures are mostly good. Many fruit trees are in bloom, and peaches have withstood the frosts much better than was at first reported. There are some complaints of damage to clover fields by worms.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

Notwithstanding the cold and cloudy weather of the early portion of the week, the weather has been generally favorable for vegetation, the light rains enabling farmers in dry localities to finish oats seeding. No damage appears to have resulted from the light frosts of the 23d and 24th. Oats are about all sown and many potatoes have been planted. Wheat is reported as being generally in good condition, although somewhat backward in a few sections. Fruit trees of all kinds are fully budded or in bloom, and the prospects for a full crop are very promising. Grass is growing very fast, giving ample food for stock.

CENTRAL SECTION.

The week has been a good growing one. During the first part plenty of moisture, and warm sunshine during the latter. Grass, wheat and rye are growing rapidly; barley is up, and oats seeding mostly finished, some coming up. Ground being prepared for corn and some planted. No damage by late frosts. A few correspondents say growth generally is in advanced of the average. A large acreage of potatoes planted and early seedings growing nicely. Most fruit trees in bloom and prospects promising for a fair crop.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

The weather has been very favorable for farm work during the past week, excepting in a few localities, where the rains have made the ground too wet for planting or plowing, and where farming operations appear to be unusually backward. Upon the whole, vegetation is as far advanced as is usual at this time of year, and the frequent rains have been decidedly beneficial. Oats sowing and plowing for corn have progressed rapidly, and some potatoes have been planted. The outlook for an excellent crop of rye is very promising, the crop being in better condition than for several years past. Wheat is growing well, except at a few points, where small patches have been killed by the cold weather. Fruit trees are beginning to bloom and the prospects are fair for an average yield.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

The past week has been a favorable one for crops. Nights a little cool, but all the vegetation has advanced rapidly. Grain and grass reported in good condition. The showers of Friday and Saturday were highly beneficial. Most fruit trees are in bloom, with fair prospects for a good crop. Peaches are not so badly injured as was supposed. Considerable plowing done and farm work generally well advanced. Strawberries are in full bloom, and prospects for a good crop. Potato planting continues and quite a large acreage already planted. All crops are looking well.

For the Week Ending May 7, 1894.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

The weather has been very favorable for vegetation, the showers of the last three days of the week being particularly beneficial. Corn planting has progressed rapidly, and at some points is about completed. Early potatoes are nearly all in, and an unusually large acreage is reported. Wheat is looking well. Oats are coming up, and a large crop is anticipated. Early clover prospects are rather poor, and the crop has received an additional setback by the appearance of the green worm, which is causing considerable damage in some sections. The outlook for the fruit crop is fair.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

Weather generally favorable for all kinds of farm work, excepting on low ground, where the soil has been too wet to work. Oats sowing about done. Grain and grass are doing well, with excellent prospects of a good crop. Fruit trees are in full bloom and all indications point to a full crop.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

All vegetation has grown rapidly during the past week. Wheat, rye and grass are doing well. Oats are all sowed. Corn ground is being prepared, and at some points seeding has commenced. An unusually large acreage of potatoes is being planted. Fruit prospects generally good.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

The weather conditions during the past week have been favorable for farm work and vegetation. Wheat and rye are growing rapidly. Corn planting is about two-thirds completed. Fruit outlook good.

CENTRAL SECTION.

The weather during the past week has been all that could be desired for farm work and for the growth of grain and grass, both crops having made fine progress. Corn and potatoes about one-half planted. Oats are doing well. The green worm is destroying clover at a few points, and a few patches of early potatoes are being injured by potato bugs. Prospects are good for a fair crop of fruit.

REMARKS.

The temperature of the past week was above the normal, with a large percentage of sunshine. There was a general absence of rainfall during the first part of the week, with showers during the latter, which were beneficial to the crops. Nearly all vegetation made rapid growth, and the outlook is generally good for grain, grass and fruit. Corn planting is well advanced. Several correspondents report injury to the clover fields by a small worm. Thus far, the season appears fully up to the average.

For the Week Ending May 14, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The percentage of sunshine during the past week was large and the temperature above the normal. These were favorable to the growing crops, and they made rapid advancement. Nearly all crops are reported in good condition, but some sections, particularly those in eastern and southeastern, are beginning to need rain quite badly. The growing season is still in advance of the average, and an early harvest of grain is probable. Seeding and general farm work is well advanced and complaints are few. Quite an abundant fruit crop is in prospect. The hail storm of the 6th did but little damage.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

The ground is getting quite dry and rain is needed for corn, clover and timothy. Wheat and oats are looking well and made vigorous growth during the week. Potatoes are growing rapidly and ground is being prepared for tobacco. Most of the corn is up, but there is some not yet planted. The prospect for a good fruit crop continues good.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

The past week has been most favorable for growth, and vegetation advanced rapidly under the warm sunshine. Most of the oats are sowed, and corn planting progressed rapidly. Grain looks well. In some places the dry weather has retarded the plowing, and more moisture is beginning to be needed for the growth of crops. Fruit prospects are good. There are some indications that the hay crop may be somewhat short. The hail storm of the 6th did but little damage.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

Corn planting well advanced and most of it already planted. The weather has been excellent for farm work and crop growth has been rapid. Potato seeding continues. Grain and grass look well and are growing finely. Apples, pears, plums and cherries blooming well, and prospects are very fair for a good crop of fruit. Warmer nights and more moisture would be advantageous.

CENTRAL SECTION.

The conditions have been excellent for work and growing crops. Most reports are favorable for grain and grass and they are well advanced and in good condition, indicating an early harvest. There are some complaints of injury to clover by worms. There has been a large percentage of sunshine, but warmer nights are needed, and in some localities rain would be beneficial. The prospect for fruit continues encouraging for a good crop.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

The warm sunshine of the past week has been favorable for growth and vegetation has advanced rapidly. Wheat, oats and grass doing well. Most of the corn is planted, and all crops are making satisfactory growth. Rain is needed in some sections. The nights are rather cool. Fruit prospects are good.

For the Week Ending May 21, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The first part of the week was warm and dry, and while most vegetation made rapid growth, there were many sections of the State, particularly in the southeastern, that suffered from drought. This affected the pasture and grass lands, and may cause a short hay crop. Most of the reports, however, are favorable, but it is feared that the late high winds and excessive rains have badly beaten and washed the growing crops. This cannot be ascertained until the storm is over. The ground is thoroughly saturated and many low lands flooded. This will cause a delay in farm work and for a few days interfere with tobacco planting.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

Vegetation advanced rapidly under the warm sunshine of the early part of the week. The frosts of the 15th and 16th did but little damage. Corn and potato planting nearly completed. Farm work in advance of last year. Grass and grain looks well. The rain during the latter part of the week was timely and will be beneficial, particularly to grass.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

The late drought injured pasture lands and the hay crop in many places. Corn, potatoes and oats also suffered, but the recent rains will relieve those that are not injured by washouts, etc. The ground is thoroughly soaked and many low lands flooded. The amount of damage likely to be caused by the excessive rains cannot yet be determined. Wheat is heading and some fields are badly lodged. Tobacco planting will be delayed for a few days. It is feared that the high winds and heavy rains have injured fruit. With the exception of the few sections injured by drought, reports are generally favorable.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

Heavy rains during the last of the week, which should be beneficial to the growing crops, as they were beginning to need moisture. Corn is coming up nicely, and looks well. Oats and wheat in good condition, and the rains have improved grass and pasture lands. Small fruits promise an average crop.

CENTRAL SECTION.

The heavy rains have soaked the ground and started all crops to growing rapidly. Corn is up, and wheat, rye and oats look well. Grass is short, but the late rains will help it. The prospects for the hay crop look better. The apple and cherry crop are not very promising.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

Warm and dry during the first of the week and heavy rains during the latter. These are timely and will improve vegetation generally. Wheat is heading and most crops in good condition.

For the Week Ending May 28, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The late excessive rains caused a great deal of damage to crops in many portions of the State, particularly along streams and in low lands. These are flooded and many hillsides were badly washed. Nearly all localities suffered more or less, but in many cases the losses will be the less felt from the fact that the rains followed a drought that was beginning to be damaging to many of the crops. Owing to the cold and water-soaked condition of the land, with the exception of grass, slow growth has been made by the crops. Most of those that were not injured directly by the storms are reported prosperous, and the conditions are favorable for fair yields. Considerable corn and potatoes will need to be replanted. Many fields of corn are turning yellow and being injured by cut worms. Wheat, rye and oats are doing fairly well. There are many complaints of fruit falling off, but probably there will be enough left for a good crop. Warmth and sunshine are now badly needed. The deficiency in temperature for the past week has average about four degrees per day.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

The excessive rains did much damage to late seeding and washed the crops badly in some localities. Low lands, flats and hillsides badly washed. Many crops on the river flats ruined and the soil washed off. In less exposed places but little damage done and the rains will be beneficial. Late seeding and re-planting will be retarded and made late, as the ground will be too wet to work for some time. Grass is much improved and is growing nicely. Corn and potatoes injured and need warmth and sunshine. Much young fruit was knocked off and garden vegetables suffered. Wheat hurt to some extent. Farm work at a standstill, but in advance of last year.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

Many of the low lands along streams badly washed and crops damaged. Protected portions suffered but little, and in these localities the rains were beneficial and fair growth made, considering the cold and lack of sunshine. There are some complaints of cut worms. Corn is growing slowly and turning yellow. Most of the crops are doing fairly well. The fruit crop will probably be short. Much of it is dropping off. The ground is so thoroughly saturated that farm work will be much delayed.

CENTRAL SECTION.

Very much damage done by washouts and floods along the streams. In some localities crops are ruined and the lands badly washed. In less exposed parts the crops have stood the excessive rains and cold quite well, and the reports are generally favorable. Wheat, rye and oats are making good growth and grass has improved very much. Ground too wet and cold for corn, and cultivation and replanting delayed. Some corn turning yellow. Cut worms doing considerable damage. Potatoes doing fairly well. The hay crop will probably be short. Fruit falling off to such an extent that a small crop is feared. Good prospects for berries.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

Many localities suffered severely by the late floods. In some cases the crops were ruined and the lands badly washed. Much re-seeding will be necessary. This and the cultivation will both be delayed.

In the more favored localities the damages were slight, although growth was delayed by the wet and cold. Rain was badly needed throughout this section, and while it has done much damage it has also done much good. Pasture and grass lands have been greatly improved. Some corn turning yellow. Cut worms becoming plentiful. Winter grain badly lodged but will probably rise again. Fruit is falling off but a fair yield is expected. Hay crop benefited. Strawberries improved. Some tobacco planted. Potatoes growing very slowly. Many will require re-planting.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

Some damage by floods and the washing out of crops, but the rains have been beneficial and improved vegetation generally. Grass looks thrifty and is growing rapidly. Most of the wheat crop looks well. Oats are doing nicely. Corn is turning yellow and being destroyed by cut worms. Too wet for replanting. Fruit crop promising. Farm work delayed. Warm sunshine needed.

For the Week Ending June 4, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The conditions of the past week have been detrimental to the growth of crops, and the continued and heavy rains have kept the ground soaked and flooded. This prevented cultivation, and the weeds obtained such rank growth that their clearance will be difficult. The cold and wet caused many seeds to rot in the ground, and re-seeding and general farm work will be much delayed. Unlodged wheat, oats and grass are generally reported in good condition. Corn is turning yellow and injured by cut worms. Very much re-planting will be necessary. Potatoes making slow progress. Fruit falling badly in nearly all parts of the State. Vegetables and garden produce growing very slowly. Considerable damage done by frost of the 29th. Temperature departure for the week, minus 42 degrees. Rainfall too variable to give average.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

The almost daily rains of the past week, added to the previously soaked condition of the soil, and the lack of warmth and sunshine, have retarded growth of crops, and rendered seeding, cultivation and re-planting impossible. Many potatoes rotting in ground. Oats injured by standing water and washouts. Corn weak and turning yellow and much re-planting necessary. Cut worms numerous. Winter grain and grass doing fairly well. The frost of the 29th did some damage on high lands. Average rainfall for the week, 2.00 inches.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

The excessive rains of the past and previous weeks were damaging to crops and slow progress has been made by those that were not washed out. The water-soaked condition of much of the land prevents cultivation and re-seeding. Weeds obtained a rapid growth and will be hard to subdue without injuring the crops. Wheat is badly lodged in many places, otherwise it is doing fairly well. Grass made good growth. Corn very backward and much of it injured. The prospect for fruit is not encouraging. Much of it is dropping off. Vegetables and garden produce are making slow growth. Some tobacco planted. Strawberries ripening. Late frosts not damaging.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

The continued cold and wet weather of the past week has delayed growth, seeding, cultivation and the re-planting made necessary by excessive rains. Wheat, rye and oats looks very well. What corn is up is turning yellow, and being injured by cut worms. Much re-planting will be necessary. Fruit falling off badly. Little injury by frost. Nearly all vegetation at a standstill.

CENTRAL SECTION.

Owing to the saturated ground, continued rain fall and cold, but little growth was made during the week. Much re-planting will have to be done, and all seeding and farm work delayed by the cold and wet conditions. Corn is turning yellow, and injured by cut worms. Needs cultivation, but this cannot be done until rain ceases. Potatoes rotting in ground. Much fruit falling. A light crop probable. The frost of the 29th did considerable damage. Vegetables and garden truck making slow progress. Some wheat heading, and that not lodged looks quite well. Oats and grass improving. Too wet for strawberries.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

The cold, wet weather of the past week did additional damage to vegetables, fruit, corn and potatoes and delayed farm work. Winter grain is generally reported in good condition. Grass looks well. The reports of the condition of the hay crop conflicting. In some localities it will be short and in others large. The frost of the 29th did considerable damage. A large acreage of corn and many potatoes must be re-planted. The fruit crop is not promising.

For the Week Ending June 11, 1894.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

The warmth and sunshine of the past few days have promoted growth and their effects are quite noticeable. The small grain crop is quite promising and corn is rapidly improving in color and condition. Quite a large portion had to be re-planted. While reports on the general condition of the crops are conflicting, the majority are quite encouraging and with continued favorable conditions, fair crops may be expected. Grass continues to improve. Very little damage done by the late frosts. Berries will be plentiful.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The first part of the week was wet and cold and the latter warm, with a large percentage of sunshine. These latter conditions were much needed and the effect on the health and growth of crops decided. Owing to the varied conditions of soil and the recent damaging storms, reports are conflicting, but all the crops have been more or less injured, growth retarded and farm work delayed. Much of the necessary re-planting will be so late that this portion of the crops will hardly have time to properly mature. In many sections the reports are quite favorable and good yields are probable. In general, small grains are doing well, and a fair harvest may be expected. Early planted corn and potatoes are improving. Fruit prospects not very encouraging. The hay crop will not be large. Berries are becoming plentiful.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

The warm, dry weather of the latter part of the week benefited crops, but the change is not very noticeable yet. The frosts of the 8th and 9th were not particularly damaging. All farm work delayed and the long-continued wet and cold damaged all crops more or less. Corn and potatoes making slow growth. A large acreage needs re-planting. Weeds have obtained a rank growth and cultivation is difficult. Corn looks yellow. Vegetables growing very slowly. Wheat and some oats doing fairly well. Grass making slow progress, and short. Fruit still falling badly and the crop will probably be short, although the prospects are reported more favorable in some localities.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

Notwithstanding the continued cold and rains during the first part of the week, and the wet and muddy condition of the soil, considerable corn and potato planting has been done, but the unfinished area is still large and will be delayed until the ground gets in a better condition. Corn that is up looks weak and yellow, and together with potatoes is making slow growth. In some sections grass is making good growth, while in others it is short and in bad condition. These same conditions exist in regard to the grain crop. Some fields are doing well and others are turning yellow. Fruit continues to drop badly. Apples are the exception in a few localities. The cherry crop will be light. The dry, warm weather of the last few days will be beneficial.

CENTRAL SECTION.

Everything except grass and small grains backward from lack of warmth and sunshine. The conditions for the last two or three days have been favorable, and its effects will soon be felt. Wheat is maturing well, and grass is reported from fair to good. Some will soon be ready to cut. Many oat fields have a rusty appearance. Much of the corn and potatoes planted just before the heavy rains, rotted in the ground, and re-seeding will be delayed and made late. Corn that is up is yellow, but will improve rapidly with warm sunshine. Early planted potatoes doing very well and improving daily. Potato-bugs unusually scarce. Fruit continues to fall, but some orchards are promising, though the yield will be light. Berries may be plentiful.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

The past week has been more favorable for crops and farm work, although much of the ground is still too wet for re-planting, and until the last few days the cold prevented proper growth, and everything is backward. Farm work much delayed. Wheat looks quite well. Although there are some exceptionally good fields of grass, the hay crop will be short. Some fields were winter killed and many of the new ones are thinly set. Tobacco planting later than usual, and only a small acreage in. The acreage of corn is large, but much of it needs re-planting. In some localities it looks well, and in others yellow and growing slowly. Early planted potatoes are promising. Fruit prospects have somewhat improved, but apple trees in some sections are suffering from a blight that is indential with "pear blight." Some of the best authorities on this disease say, "cut back into healthy wood and burn all diseased portions."

For the Week Ending June 18, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The warm, dry weather and high percentage of sunshine during the past week was highly beneficial to growth, development and cultivation of crops. Much re-planting was done, and farmers were enabled to rid most of their planted grounds of the unusual large growth of weeds. All crops growing rapidly and the outlook for average yields more favorable. A good wheat crop is in prospect. Some rye harvested. Hay-making becoming general, but the crop at large will be less than average. Much of it badly mixed with weeds. Potatoes and corn improving. Many oat fields suffering from blight. Fruit dropping badly, and the crop will be short. Vegetables growing nicely. Tobacco setting well advanced. Acreage below average.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

Rapid growth was made during the past week of warm sunshine, and most crops are reported in very fair condition. In some localities rain would be beneficial. Corn has improved, but is still backward. Vegetables are growing rapidly. Wheat and oats look well. Ground in good condition for cultivation. Grass heavy in some counties, and the yield will be quite large.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

The warm sunshine of the past seven days was decidedly favorable for growth and many of the crops are rapidly recovering from the effects of the previous cold, wet weather. Winter grain looks well. Considerable corn has been re-planted and cultivated. Much of it still looks yellow and needs continued favorable conditions for rapid advancement. Cut worms and bugs plentiful. Many oat fields looks yellow and spotted. The crop will probably be short. Grass in good condition. Potatoes improving. Vegetables generally backward, but improving daily. Apple crop promising. Ground getting in good condition for tilling.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

The past week was favorable for agricultural interests. Some hay harvested and while the yield is fair, an unusual amount of weeds is mixed with it. Some rye was also cut in good condition. Corn is now making good growth, but most of it is short for the season and considerable had to be re-planted. Potatoes are improving, the early planted will be a good crop. The blight is still affecting many of the fields of oats, also the apple trees. Fruit continues falling. The grape crop will be light. Tobacco planting is about finished. The acreage is small. Gardens looks well. Strawberry crop large. Hailstorm of 12th did considerable damage to crops. Wheat ripening and prospects encouraging.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

Conditions were favorable for growth and cultivation during the past week, and its effect on vegetation very apparent. Winter grain looks well, and will yield a good crop. Corn is improving, but cut worms are plentiful and have badly injured some fields. Oats fair, but rusty in sections. Grass generally in good condition. Hay-making in progress with a fair yield. Berries in abundance. Fruit dropping badly. Potatoes promising.

CENTRAL SECTION.

Under the late favorable conditions, all vegetation made good progress and the prospects much more encouraging. Reports generally are favorable for wheat, rye and barley. Corn is backward and short, but is now growing quite rapidly and obtaining a more healthy condition. Oats suffering from blight, upper blades turning yellow. Severe hail storm on 12th, doing considerable damage to crops. Fruit falling. The apple crop will be light. Some buckwheat sown along streams to replace the grain destroyed by floods. Tobacco acreage small.

For the Week Ending June 25, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

Dry weather, with high temperature, and a large percentage of sunshine prevailed throughout the State during the past week.

While a few thunderstorms occurred, they were local in character and did not supply the amount of moisture that is beginning to be needed for agricultural interests. Rapid growth was made, and the growing crops are fast recovering from the effects of the unfavorable conditions of last month. Small grains are maturing, with good prospects for an average yield of wheat. Some already harvested in good condition. Rye is fair, but oats are generally rusty and the harvest will be light. Haying is in progress. The quantity and quality will be somewhat below the average. Corn is obtaining better color, and in some sections growing rapidly. The acreage of potatoes is large, and in most localities they are doing well. Slight changes in fruit prospects.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

The rainfall was light and unevenly distributed. Many sections beginning to need rain. The week was favorable for growth, and most crops made rapid advancement. Small grains maturing rapidly. Corn obtaining better color and growth. Potatoes improving. Acreage large. Bugs plentiful. The oats crop will be short. Many fields affected by blight and lice. Some hay harvested. Crop less than average, although large in a few localities. The outlook for apples more favorable. Tobacco planting about finished. Late seeding of all kinds much improved and now in very good condition.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

Fine growing weather and abundant sunshine. Wheat maturing rapidly with average prospects. Rye harvest nearly finished. Many oats are rusty. The crop will be below the average. Haying well under way. While much of it is good, it is generally below the average in quantity and quality. In some localities corn is growing rapidly, with good prospects, while many reports are not so favorable. A large acreage of potatoes taking the place of tobacco. Outlook favorable. Tobacco starting nicely. The average rainfall was light and badly distributed. More moisture is needed.

CENTRAL SECTION.

The past week was most favorable for the growth of all crops and the ripening of grain. Some wheat harvested. It appears to be well filled and an average crop is expected. Very little improvement in oats. Many of them are affected by rust and the yield will fall short of the average. Corn, though small, is beginning to make rapid growth, and is improving. Haying in progress. Some correspondents report a fair yield. Potatoes steadily improving. Light local rains occurred, but more moisture is needed.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

The light local rains of the early part of the week did much good but more is needed throughout the entire section. Good growth was made, and wheat is maturing in good shape. Prospects favorable for an average harvest. The oats crop will be generally light. Corn is getting in good condition, but many hills are missing. Potatoes look well. The hay crop will be short. Fruit fair in some sections and poor in others.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

Rapid growth was made during the week, but the showers were too local in character to be generally beneficial. A good soaking rain needed. Grass beginning to dry up. Hay crop will be light. Corn small in size, but improving in color and making fair progress. Wheat ripening. Oats not in very good condition. Potatoes doing well. Most vegetables obtaining a good growth. Fruit will be scarce.

For the Week Ending July 2, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The conditions of the past week were favorable for haying and harvesting. Considerable hay has been cut and properly cured. The late growing weather improved it rapidly, and the crop is found better than was expected. Some wheat and rye have been harvested and the balance is about ready for the reaper. A good wheat harvest is in prospect. Oats will be short in most parts of the State. Corn has improved steadily, and is getting in good shape. Potatoes are doing well. Tobacco growing nicely. Timely rains occurred and, while more is needed in some sections, reports are generally favorable.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

Favorable conditions continued during the past week and rapid progress made in growth, cultivation and haying. Wheat and rye nearly ready to cut. An average crop expected. The showers were timely and beneficial, but more rain is needed in some localities. Corn and potatoes are making good growth. Bugs plentiful. Lice and blight are affecting oats. The crop will be short. Grass improving. Apples still falling but promise a fair yield. Plowing for buckwheat. The hay crop will be fair.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

Haying well under way and, while the crop has improved rapidly of late, it will not come up to the average, although it is better than was expected. The weather has been favorable for curing and considerable has been secured in good condition. Grain fields are ripening rapidly, and some already harvested. With the exception of oats the prospects are favorable for a good yield. The showers were highly beneficial to growing crops. Corn growing fast and looks healthy. Tobacco doing well. Early potatoes a good crop. Some late patches need more rain.

CENTRAL SECTION.

Small grains maturing rapidly. Some wheat harvested. An average crop expected. Considerable hay secured in good condition and of better quality than was expected. Oats injured by blight and will be short. Corn and potatoes steadily improving, but more rain is needed for them and the pasture lands.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

Warm sunshine and showers during the past week rapidly advanced and improved vegetation generally. More moisture, however, is needed in most sections. Most corn fields are doing well, a few fields that failed are being put in buckwheat. Grain is ripening rapidly, and some wheat fields harvested. A fair yield is in prospect. Haymaking in progress. Grass somewhat improved. Fruits doing fairly well. Potatoes in good condition.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

Wheat and rye nearly ready for harvesting, with prospect of good crops. The blight injured oats, and the yield will be light. They are now in head. Some haying done but has not yet become general. The crop will be short. Corn and potatoes doing fairly well. Showers occurred during the week, but more would be of advantage to the growing crops. Some buckwheat put in.

For the Week Ending July 9, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The temperature of the first part of the week was above the normal and below during the latter part. The rainfall was light and local, and the deficiency is beginning to affect growing crops, particularly potatoes. Harvesting and haymaking were well advanced under favorable conditions, with an average wheat yield and fair hay crop. The quality of the latter is hardly up to the standard. Oats will be short. Corn, tobacco and other products doing fairly well. Fruit continues to fall in many localities.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

The wheat harvest is about over, the grain being either in shock or barn. Reports differ as to quantity and quality, but the over-produce tion in favored localities will balance the shortage in others, so that the yield will be about an average one. Oats will be short. Hay-making well advanced with a fair crop. The rain of the 6th was local and insufficient. All growing crops need more moisture, but potatoes are most affected. Corn and tobacco doing fairly well.

CENTRAL SECTION.

The bulk of wheat and rye was harvested during the week. An average yield is expected. The conditions for harvesting were favorable and the crop has been housed in good condition. While reports indicate an improvement in oats, they will be short. Quite a quantity of good hay has been secured. Most growing crops are doing fairly well, but the absence of rain is being felt. Pastures are drying up, potatoes are suffering and in some localities, corn is affected.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

Most products growing nicely, but more rain is quite badly needed in many localities, as the ground is getting quite dry. Harvesting and haying in progress, with a good return of wheat. Oats ripening rapidly, but will be short. Rye and barley not very promising. Hay better than expected but not a full crop. Corn making good growth. Buckwheat sown and some coming up. Pasture and grass lands, together with potatoes, need rain. Apples promise a fair yield.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

The showers during the week were too light and local to give best results and rain is quite badly needed in most localities. Wheat harvest in progress with a good yield. Considerable hay cut; the crop will be a fair one, but less than the average. Oats rusted and short. Potatoes and corn are doing well but suffering from drought.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

Local rains occurred during the week, but more is needed in most localities. Conditions were favorable for harvesting, and the wheat crop is about secured with an average yield. Oats have somewhat improved but they are generally light. Vegetables doing fairly well. Corn growing nicely. Potatoes need rain. Haying in progress, with much of the crop cured in good shape.

For the Week Ending July 16, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The temperature was below normal during the first part of the week and above during the latter. The rainfall deficiency amounted to about one inch. The drought is beginning to affect growing crops quite seriously, and unless a good soaking rain comes soon they will be permanently injured. The ground is very dry and pastures are fast drying up. Conditions were favorable for the completion of the wheat and rye harvest, and good crops were obtained. A fair hay crop has been secured. Oats are ripening rapidly and some harvested, but they are short and light. Tobacco and corn doing fairly well, although the latter shows lack of moisture.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

The light local showers of the week were too small to meet the demands of the growing crops and most of them are beginning to show the affect of the lack of moisture. Much of the wheat and rye has been harvested, and oats are nearly ready. The former produced a good yield, but the latter will be short. The weather has been excellent for harvesting. Haying well advanced, with average crop. Corn doing fairly well but needs rain. Many potato tops dying. Pastures look parched and are rapidly failing. Reports more favorable from a few localities. Apple prospects fair.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

With the exception of oats the grain harvest is about over and good yields were secured in good condition. A fair hay crop has been obtained. Oats ripening rapidly but will be light. Rain is badly needed and all vegetation begins to suffer from lack of it. Pastures are getting light, gardens drying up, potatoes and corn affected, all needing a good soaking rain. Some complaints of cut worms damaging corn but most reports are favorable for corn and tobacco. Threshing commenced.

CENTRAL SECTION.

Wheat safely housed in good condition. Some oats harvested. Most reports indicate a short crop. The drought is beginning to be felt quite severely and will soon seriously affect all growing crops. Potatoes already injured. Gardens drying up. Corn looks fairly well but needs rain. Pastures parched.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

Wheat cut and mostly stored. Some oats harvested; yield light, not well filled. Corn, potatoes and vegetables being injured by drought. Meadows becoming parched. Berries drying up; a soaking rain is badly needed.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

Light frosts occurred in some localities on the morning of the 9th. The wheat harvest is nearly finished with a good yield. Haying is still progressing favorably, the crop being rather short. The drought is being severely felt in many places. Potatoes suffering quite severely and pastures are drying up.

For the Week Ending July 23, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The hot, dry weather of the past week has had injurious effects on all growing crops and these effects will continue until copious rains occur. Light local showers partially relieved a few sections but the drought is now general throughout the State, and unless it is soon broken the injury will be great.

The grain harvest and haying is about over, and the crops were secured under favorable conditions. The yield of oats is below the average. Pastures are drying up and are insufficient for the stock. Potatoes are suffering severely and corn needs more moisture very badly. Severe hailstorm, 16th, in southeastern section.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

Severe hailstorm 16th; particularly damaging to crops in Bucks county. The storm was accompanied by rain, high winds, lightning and hail, which cut down growing crops, killed many fowl and damaged trees and buildings. Drifts of hail formed to the depth of one and two feet. The showers of the 16th, 21st and 22d were beneficial but too light and local to remedy the effects of the drought. All crops are suffering for the want of moisture. This, together with the hot weather, is rapidly drying everything up. The oats harvest is about completed, with a yield below the average.

CENTRAL SECTION.

All growing crops are suffering from the heat and drought and are rapidly drying up. The light rains of the 20th, 21st, 22d and 23d were local and insufficient. Pastures are burning up, potatoes suffering and corn will soon be permanently injured if present conditions continue. Oats harvest nearly over. Crop below average. Berries drying up on the bushes and garden produce injured.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

Potatoes, buckwheat and corn suffering from the heat and drought. Grass is drying up and apples cannot develop for want of moisture. Light local rains occurred during the week but much more is needed, and that soon, or the result will be disastrous to crops in many localities. Oats harvest well advanced. Haying about over.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

Haying is about finished in good condition and a fair crop secured. Oats harvest in progress; crop short. The weather continues hot and dry, favorable for harvesting but the drought is injurious to growing crops and its effect is being severely felt. A few localities had beneficial showers during the week but much more is needed all over this section. The potato crop is already injured, and corn shows the lack of moisture. Apples are falling badly.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

Light rains during the latter part of week which were beneficial but entirely too small to meet the requirements of the crops, which are already injured in many localities. Corn is making very slow progress. Pastures are drying up and potatoes will be a poor crop unless soon relieved by a good rain. Creeks, wells and springs are getting very low.

For the Week Ending July 30, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

High temperatures and a high percentage of sunshine prevailed during the week, which rapidly dried out the moisture so much needed for vegetation. The drought continues in most sections, and is injuriously affecting pasture lands and growing crops. Local rains occurred which revived plant life where they fell, but the rain areas were very limited and sparsely distributed. Early and saturating rains may yet be timely in the saving of the larger portion of the crops, but many are already permanently injured, and will be light under the most favorable conditions. The oats crop is about harvested and is below the average. Wheat is turning out very satisfactorily and a very fair hay crop has been secured in good condition. Rye and barley are hardly up to the standard and buckwheat will be short if not relieved soon by copious showers.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

Opportune showers occurred during the week in many localities but the distribution was very unequal and generally insufficient to meet the demands of the crops. The effect was marked and beneficial in the favored localities. Grass lands were freshened, corn, tobacco and potatoes revived and truck produce improved. The drought, however, continues in many places and crops are permanently injured. Wells and springs are failing and dairymen report a great falling off in milk on account of lack of pasturage.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

Local showers occurred during the past week but were deficient in quantity and not general enough to meet the demand. As previously reported, all growing crops are suffering. Pastures are dried up and corn, buckwheat and potatoes need more rain badly. Haying is about over, and a very fair crop has been housed in good condition. Barley and oats are below average. The prospect for apples is not very encouraging. Water in springs and brooks getting very low.

CENTRAL SECTION.

The late local showers did much to relieve many of the parched fields and the improved condition of the crops is mainly in proportion to the amount of rainfall. The relief, however, is only temporary; the fall being light, was rapidly absorbed and is fast drying out. Oats harvest about over. Yield light. Pasturage is getting in bad condition. Many crops permanently injured, but early rains will revive corn and some other products.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

Greatly needed rains fell during the week in a few localities, which improved vegetation. Corn, potatoes and pastures were greatly revived but much more rain is needed as the hot weather rapidly dries out the moisture. Haying about over and many farmers secured a fair crop. Oats harvest nearly finished; yield below average. Apple crop light. Pears, peaches and plums promise quite well.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

While the drought continues to be general, a few localities were much relieved by local showers. Some of the staple crops are permanently injured by the drought and more will rapidly follow unless rain comes soon. Harvesting is about over, with oats a fair crop in many localities but generally below the average. Corn, buckwheat and potatoes may yet do fairly well with sufficient moisture. Fruit generally a failure.

For the Week Ending August 6, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

Dry weather, high temperature and abundant sunshine continued during the first of the week, with sufficient rain during the middle part to temporarily break the serious effects of the drought in several localities. The showers were local, badly distributed and in some sections attended with high winds and hail, which were quite damaging. With late frosts and favorable conditions, a good corn crop may be secured. The majority of the potato crop is probably too much injured to fully recover. Pasture lands have improved, but the shortage affects dairy interests and in some parts hay has been fed to stock. Buckwheat and tobacco look better. The late oats are being harvested, and some haying is still in progress. Much fruit beaten off by late storms. Fruit prospects generally reported unfavorable. Early and heavy rains badly needed for growing crops and preparation of ground for plowing and seeding.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

Corn, potatoes, buckwheat, tobacco and pasture lands much improved by showers during the week, but only a few localities received enough to meet the demands. Many pastures permanently injured of corn has been retarded but the injury may not prove serious if by the drought, and all produce more or less affected. The growth early frosts do not occur to prevent its maturing, as it is now making rapid growth. Buckwheat, tobacco and pasture lands in better condition. In some localities hay had to be fed to stock. Fall plowing in progress. In some counties the harvesting of oats and haying continues. Considerable damage by hail, high winds and lightning.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

The showers of the past week did much to revive vegetation and, while there are numerous exceptions, the fall was sufficient for immediate purposes. Most of the corn, potatoes, tobacco and buckwheat will be much improved, and with continued favorable conditions, many will secure good crops. In other localities the crops are permanently injured and the yield will be light. A heavy hail-storm on the 30th, attended by high winds and heavy rains, did considerable damage to growing crops, fruits, buildings, trees, etc., in several localities. A worm is working in the stem of potatoes, causing much damage. Cabbage slugs in immense numbers. Poor prospects for fruit, particularly apples. Considerable fall plowing done. Celery looking well.

CENTRAL SECTION.

The drought was partially broken during the week, and crops that were not too seriously injured show marked improvement, but many of the bad effects of the drought cannot now be overcome. Some corn, potatoes and buckwheat look promising, but the relief is temporary, and more rain is needed for the crops, fall plowing and seeding. Considerable damage by hail. Very few apples left. Potatoes improving, but will be below average. Buckwheat may be a fair crop. A few late oats yet to harvest. Pastures look much better since the late rains.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

Light rains occurred during the week which were beneficial but too small to meet the requirements of the crops, which are already permanently injured in many localities. Corn is doing fairly well, pasture lands improved but still in bad shape and affecting dairy interests. Tomatoes rotting; plowing delayed. Buckwheat and potatoes somewhat improved, but the latter will be a short crop.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

The showers during the week were beneficial but too light to be of and permanent benefit. A few localities received a more generous supply and a marked improvement is there noticeable in the condition of potatoes, corn and pasture lands. Oats are nearly all harvested; will be below average. Some plowing done. Berries plentiful.

For the Week Ending August 13, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The temperature for the week was below the average. The first part was warm, the latter part cool. A few showers occurred but they were light and badly distributed. That of the 12th was sufficient for the southeastern section and will be timely in many localities to save corn and highly beneficial to other growing crops. Reports from other districts are generally discouraging, as the drought has permanently injured most of the crops. Corn cannot now fully recover under any conditions, and much of it has made such slow growth that it will not have time to mature. Tobacco is doing fairly well and some has been cut. Pasture lands are generally in poor condition, and in some sections there is a scarcity of water for stock. Some fields of oats were not worth cutting and were used for pasturage. Grasshoppers are reported plentiful and destructive along the northern border of the State. The potato crop will be below the average. Plowing for fall seeding continues, but delayed in some sections on account of dryness.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

The rains of the week were not sufficient to break the drought, and corn, tobacco, potatoes, buckwheat and pastures are still suffering from lack of moisture. Apples continue to fall, and small fruits are drying up. The oats crop was generally below average and some not worth harvesting. Grasshoppers doing considerable injury in Tioga county. Corn has been so much injured that it cannot fully recover. The potato crop will be mostly light. More favorable reports come from a few localities, but they are exceptional.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

Notwithstanding the general lack of rain up to the 12th, corn and tobacco made good progress and the prospects are now much more favorable for these crops. The late rains were ample for the present. Some tobacco has been cut. Potatoes are doing fairly well and pastures will be much improved. Very late corn may not have time to ripen. Fruit scarce. Most farm work well advanced.

CENTRAL SECTION.

Reports from central district are generally unfavorable, as the drought has permanently injured most of the crops. In a few localities they were improved by late rains, but they were not sufficient nor well distributed. Corn cannot now recover, and the potato crop will be short. Buckwheat and millet making slow progress. Fall plowing delayed. Pastures somewhat improved.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

Most correspondents report the crops permanently injured. An occasional field is the exception. Corn cannot now be a full crop. The potato yield is light. Pasturage generally poor; some farmers turned their stock into their oat fields, as they were not worth cutting. Plowing quite general.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

Much damage has been done by the late drought and it is now too late for the crops to recover. Pastures are brown and dry and most corn fields show slow growth and, together with potatoes, are permanently injured. Buckwheat very uneven. Numerous small streams, wells and springs entirely dry, and farmers are obliged to haul water from a distance.

For the Week Ending August 20, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The temperature for the past week has averaged about one degree a day below the normal. Nights have been cool. The rainfall deficiency for the week amounts to nearly a half inch. In a few counties there has been a marked improvement in the crop conditions, but these are exceptions, as most of the reports are unfavorable. The drought has produced damaging effects from which the crops cannot now recover. Much, however, will depend on early rains and late frosts. The corn and potato crops will be considerably below the average. Buckwheat looks fairly well. Some early tobacco of good quality has been housed. Pasturage is generally in bad condition, and in some localities stock is being fed. Where not too dry a large acreage of plowing for fall seeding has been done. Fruit scarce, continues falling and much of it ripening very unevenly.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

Drought practically broken in this section, although more rain would be beneficial in some localities. All growing crops and pasturage much improved and corn promises a fair yield. Potatoes being dug and better than expected, but below average. Considerable early tobacco housed; quality good. Second hay crop being cut; yield light. Buckwheat fair. Fruit scarce and ripening very unevenly. Plowing well advanced. Crop conditions in York county generally encouraging.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

Drought only partially broken and, while the late rains will benefit all growing crops, none of them can fully recover from the effects of the drought. Corn has stood the damaging conditions better than would be supposed but will be short. Buckwheat, potatoes and tobacco have improved, but owing to lack of moisture many potatoes did not set properly. Many springs and small streams very low. Fruit scarce.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

Very little rain during the week and the damaging effects of the drought continue. Many crops permanently injured. Corn cannot recover. The yield of potatoes will be light. Pastures are dried up and in some localities stock is being fed. Water very low in springs and small streams. Gardens in bad condition.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

Light rains occurred during the week, but still very dry and most crops too far advanced to recover from the damaging effects of the drought. Springs and small streams dried up and, owing to short pasturage, stock is being fed in some localities. The corn and potato crop will be short. Fruit scarce. In some counties the conditions are more favorable, but there will be a general shortage throughout the entire section. Some fall plowing done.

CENTRAL SECTION.

Crops much improved during the past week but more rain is badly needed. With late frosts a fair crop of corn is possible. Buckwheat looks fairly well. The potato yield will be light. Pasturage has improved, but still short. Garden truck doing fairly well. Fruit scarce. Considerable fall plowing done but delayed by dry condition of soil.

For the Week Ending August 27, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The temperature of the past week has been slightly below the average. The days were warm and the nights cool. With the exception of some favored localities in a few counties in the southeastern section, the damaging effects of the drought continues and, while good soaking rains will be beneficial to the later crops, only a small percentage of them can reach an average under the most favorable conditions. Corn has suffered the least, but much of it is drying up and ripening prematurely. Potatoes are small and of light yield. Buckwheat produced a good straw but lacks moisture and will be a short crop. Pasturage is very short and insufficient for stock. Much of the small acreage of tobacco has been housed in good condition and is reported to be of good quality. Plowing for fall seeding delayed. Many springs and small streams dried up. Additional rains are badly needed in all sections, and in many places the crops will be a total failure if they do not come early. Some are already beyond help.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

Rain is needed in the eastern counties of this section and a shortage in all crops will result if long delayed. The conditions have been more favorable in the southern and western counties, and average crops may be expected. In these localities corn is well advanced and will mature without additional moisture. Most of the plowing finished where the land is in proper condition. Considerable tobacco cut and housed in good condition. The acreage is small. The potato crop is generally below the average. Pastures much improved. Fruit scarce.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

The drought continues in this section and the crops very much injured. In many localities corn will be a failure. The potato yield will be a light one. Pasturage in bad condition. Very little plowing done on account of dry condition of soil. Buckwheat much below average.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

All vegetation suffering for want of moisture. Potatoes small and yield light. Pasturage very poor and short. Dairymen feeding stock. Corn standing the drought better than other crops, but it is short and cannot recover. Buckwheat doing fairly well under such unfavorable conditions. Some of the early ripened has been cut. Considerable plowing done.

CENTRAL SECTION.

Crops made but little progress during the week. The drought continues and is injuriously affecting all vegetation. Corn is standing the unfavorable conditions fairly well but the yield will fall below the average. Some of it is ripening prematurely and drying up. Potatoes are small in size and quantity. Rain might improve the very late ones, and would materially help buckwheat. Pasturage short. Plowing pretty well advanced but in some localities it is delayed on account of dry weather.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

The damaging effects of the drought continue and there will be a shortage in all crops. A good soaking rain would improve late potatoes, buckwheat and corn, but they cannot fully recover under any conditions. Pasturage in bad condition and stock being fed. Crops ripening prematurely. Plowing delayed. Fall vegetables in bad condition and will prove failures without early rains. Some tobacco housed in fine condition. Grasshoppers injurious in Tioga county.

For the Week Ending September 3, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The temperature of the past week was generally above the average and a high percentage of sunshine prevailed, but the effects were much modified by the very smoky condition of the atmosphere, caused by extensive forest fires. The drought continues unbroken and its damaging effects on staple and small crops are becoming quite serious. Many of them cannot now recover. Corn is not well filled out and is rapidly drying up. Buckwheat has withstood the damaging conditions fairly well. Some of the early has been harvested. Most of the tobacco has been housed in good condition. The yield has been fair but the acreage was light.

The condition of the potato crop is a variable one, ranging from good to a total failure. As a whole it will fall considerable below the average. The fruit crop is a light one. Pasturage is very poor and many have been feeding stock for some time. Many small streams are dried up and in some sections a water famine is feared. If the present dry conditions are not soon relieved, it will affect the working of many collieries. The Susquehanna is becoming very low and much of its bed exposed. At Harrisburg it is within four inches of the low water mark of 1803 and is still falling. Forest fires have been numerous throughout the State.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

The drought continues unbroken and its damaging effects increasing daily. Pastures are dried up to such an extent that stock feeding is becoming general. A small percentage of corn and buckwheat would yet be benefited by early rains, but much of both is badly injured. Potatoes will be a light crop. Most of the tobacco crop housed in good condition. Small streams and springs have disappeared and the dry condition of the forests has made them a prey to fires, and in many places their destruction has been serious. The smoke is so dense that the sun is almost obscured. The roads are a bed of dust. Nights cool. Grasshoppers destructive in Tioga county.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

The excessive drought existing throughout the State has not been so damaging to the staple crops in this section as in others, but it is quite serious in most localities, and the yield of corn, potatoes and buckwheat will be below the average. Pastures generally are poor. Fruit scarce. Plowing well advanced but some delayed by dry weather. Most of the tobacco housed in good condition. A fairly good yield. Sun nearly obscured by smoke the entire week.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

The drought continues unbroken and its effects daily becoming more serious. Corn not properly filled out and rapidly drying up. Buckwheat may be a fair crop. Potatoes being dug; yield light. Pasturage in bad condition and stock being fed. Plowing delayed. Ground hard and dry. Springs and small streams dried up. Atmosphere full of smoke.

CENTRAL SECTION.

All crops suffering from lack of moisture and many of them ripening prematurely. Corn badly dried up and cannot be a full crop under any conditions. Potatoes below average. Buckwheat looks fairly well but will be short. Pasturage becoming scarce and stock will require feeding. Plowing and seeding delayed. Very smoky during the entire week. Springs and small streams drying up.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

Drought continues and all vegetation fast becoming seriously injured. Corn drying up and will be a short crop. Pasturage very poor, water becoming scarce, light yield of potatoes and garden produce in bad condition. Fruit scarce. Atmosphere smoky.

For the Week Ending September 10, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The temperature for the past week was above the normal, and a high percentage of sunshine prevailed. This was modified somewhat during the first part by the smoky condition of the atmosphere. Local showers occurred on the 5th and 6th. On the 8th the rain was general and heavy, being sufficient to thoroughly saturate the ground in most sections. In some localities it was attended by high winds and numerous washouts were reported. A cloudburst occurred at Bethlehem, causing a flood that reached the second story windows on several streets and caused damage estimated at over $50,000. Many houses, barns and other buildings throughout the State were struck by lightning during this storm, which resulted in heavy losses to stored crops by fires. While the late rains may prove beneficial in some cases to late crops, they came too late to materially affect the damaging conditions caused by the protracted drought, and a general shortage of all crops is the result. Corn has dried up without being properly filled and considerable has been cut. Many correspondents say that potatoes will not be much over a half crop. Buckwheat has done fairly well in some sections. Tobacco is about all housed. The quality is good, but the acreage was small. Pasturage is short and dried up, but will probably revive under existing conditions. The ground is now in good condition for the completion of fall plowing and seeding.

Note.—The Weekly Crop Bulletin for the State will be discontinued after next week's issue, but crop correspondents are requested to continue their reports until further notice for use in making up reports for the National Bulletin.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

Drought broken by rains of the 5th, 6th and 8th. The latter were generally heavy and sufficient to place the soil in good condition for plowing and fall seeding. It came too late to be of much benefit to crops, but may help late corn and potatoes, both of which will be below the average. Corn cutting in progress. Much of it dried up and are not well filled. Buckwheat fair but below average. Some already harvested. Pastures very poor, not sufficient for stock, but will be improved by the late rains. Fruit continues dropping badly. Nearly all of the tobacco crop housed.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

The late rains put the ground in good condition for plowing and seeding, will revive the dying and dried-up pastures and be of some benefit to late crops. Most of the staple crops, however, are too far advanced to be affected. Considerable buckwheat and corn already cut and the tobacco all housed. Many potatoes dug. Yield below average. Some localities in this section have not been so seriously affected by drought, and good crops will be obtained.

CENTRAL SECTION.

The long-wished for rain came at last, but too late to repair the damage done by the drought. Most of the crops are too far advanced to be affected by the copious showers, but pastures and some of the late crops will be improved and the ground put in good condition for plowing and seeding. Potatoes will be much below average. Corn will be short and buckwheat less than usual. Tobacco housed in good condition. Late vegetables should be benefited.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

The rains of the 6th, 7th and 8th put the ground in good condition for plowing and seeding and filled up the springs and small streams. They will improve pastures and late vegetation, but most crops are too far advanced to be benefited and a general shortage will be the result of the prolonged drought. Corn cutting in progress, and most of the buckwheat harvested. Tobacco about all housed.

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

The recent rains were too late to be of much benefit to the crops and only the very late ones will be improved. The rains have placed the ground in good condition for plowing and seeding, and these operations will now be resumed. A general shortage of all crops is the result of the drought. Corn cutting and potato digging in progress.

For the Week Ending September 17, 1894.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The temperature of the past week was above normal, and the rainfall slightly below, but sufficient for the demand of the late crops, plowing and fall seeding. The latter is generally well advanced. In most cases the drought was not broken in time to help the crops as many of them had ripened prematurely and were not fully developed. Some of the late corn fields will improve if not affected by frost, but much of the early corn is already in shock. In many localities buckwheat has stood the effect of the drought very well and the yield will be a fair one. Potatoes mostly dug and below average. Fruit scarce. Pastures have been greatly improved.

Note.—This number completes the publication of the Pennsylvania

Crop Bulletin for the season of 1894. Correspondents are requested to continue their reports until further notice, for the benefit of the National Bulletin.

NORTHEASTERN SECTION.

Conditions during the past week were favorable for plowing, seeding and the growth of such crops as were not prematurely ripened from lack of moisture. Some of the early ripened corn and buckwheat has been cut. The yield of these will be generally short. The potato crop will be below average. Pasturage has much improved. The apple crop will be a light one. Fall plowing and seeding has been pushed rapidly forward since the drought has broken, and is now fairly well advanced.

SOUTHEASTERN SECTION.

The ground is now in good condition for the completion of fall plowing, seeding and the continued growth of such crops as have not ripened prematurely. Fall seeding is well advanced, and much of the early buckwheat, corn and potatoes harvested. These crops have suffered less from the drought in this section than in other parts of the State, although the yield as a whole will be below the average. Pasturage has improved and is now getting in very fair shape. The apple crop will be short. Celery promises well.

SOUTHWESTERN SECTION.

The breakage of the drought enables the farmers to resume their fall plowing and seeding, and this work is now well advanced. The rains came too late to be of much benefit to staple crops and only the very late ones will be improved. Considerable corn already in shock and most potatoes and buckwheat harvested. All crops below average. Fruit short. Pasturage improved, and the late truck benefited.,

NORTHWESTERN SECTION.

Abundant rains rendered the ground suitable for plowing and seeding, improved the pastures and a few of the late crops will be benefited, but in most cases the crops are too far advanced to be helped. Corn cutting is well advanced. Most of the apples have fallen. Peaches small and of inferior quality. Garden crops generally a failure.

CENTRAL SECTION.

The soil is now saturated and most of the ground is ready for seeding or already sown. Pasturage has improved and the late crops will be benefited if not injured by frost, but most crops are too far advanced to be improved by any conditions. Corn cutting is now in progress. Some fields will yield well, but they are mostly below average. The buckwheat crop will be a fair one. Some early sown wheat is up and growing nicely. Fruit scarce.

U. S. Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau,
Office of the State Weather Service,
Philadelphia, Pa., October, 12, 1894.

REPORT OF THE WEATHER CONDITIONS OF THE CROP OF THE CURRENT YEAR.

Winter.

Very little snow fell during the winter and what did fall remained on the ground but a short time, so that the winter wheat was left unprotected by its usual blanket of snow. As the weather was very mild but little of the wheat was frozen out, and at the beginning of spring it was reported in a promising condition.

March.

The month of March was unusually warm, being 8.2 degrees above the average, and the rainfall 1.92 inches less than the average. The excess in temperature occurred previous to the 26th, 27th and 28th, when very low temperatures were recorded and considerable damage done to early budding fruits and clover. The damage, however, did not prove as disastrous as was at first feared and reported. Owing to the warmth and favorable conditions, vegetation obtained an early start, and at the end of the month farmers were well advanced with their spring work. A large acreage of plowing was done, some oats seeded and sprouted, a few potatoes and peas planted, early gardening started, wheat thrifty and growing nicely and grass had obtained a good start. The rainfall was fairly well distributed and sufficient.

April.

The temperature for April was normal and the rainfall nearly so. Low temperatures occurred on the 3d which added additional injury to fruit and tender vegetation. Some wheat was reported injured by the cracking of the ground and exposure of the roots, which caused blades to wither. Many of the early potatoes were frozen and much re-planting made necessary. On the 10th and 11th a severe snow storm occurred in the interior and eastern portions of the State, which delayed farm work, but probably benefited wheat. The weather conditions during the balance of April were favorable for germination, growth, plowing and seeding. Farm work was well advanced, oats seeding nearly completed, a large acreage of potatoes and much of the early varieties of corn planted, considerable gardening done, wheat growing nicely, many fruit trees in bloom and vegetation generally up to the average at this season of the year.

May.

The average temperature for May was about 1.6 degrees above the normal. The precipitation amounted to an excess of 4.79 inches. Warm, dry weather, with a high percentage of sunshine prevailed until after the middle of the month, and while there were fears of an injurious drought, the damages were light and vegetation made rapid growth. Crops were generally reported in good condition and the growing season in advance of the average. Both seeding and farm work were well advanced, and the prospects were encouraging for a good wheat crop. Most of the corn was planted and some of it up, oats about all sowed, pasturage and grass in good condition and considerable ground prepared for tobacco. On May 17th and 18th general rains occurred and became heavy on the 19th and excessive on the 20th and 21st. These rains produced disastrous floods in many parts of the State and agricultural interests suffered severely. Many farms along the rivers and streams were completely inundated, crops washed out and the lands left covered with deposits of mud and foreign matter. Numerous farms not subject to the overflow of streams were badly washed, lowlands flooded and growing crops injured by washouts and washings from the hillsides. Seeds rotted in the ground from cold and excessive moisture and farm work was long delayed by the muddy and saturated condition of the soil. Many of the crops never fully recovered from the damage done by these storms, and the re-seeding that was necessary made many of them late. Rains were frequent during the entire latter part of the month. Quite severe frosts occurred on the 29th, which added additional damage to the crops.

June.

The temperature for June was nearly normal. Low temperatures and light frosts occurred on the 6th, 7th and 8th and unusually high temperatures prevailed on the 22d, 23d and 24th. While rains were frequent they were light, causing a deficiency of 1.38 inches for the month. Owing to the damaged conditions of the crops by the storms in May, low temperatures and the cold and saturated condition of the soil during the early part of June, but little progress was made in growth or re-planting until after the first decade. From this time until the end of the month the weather conditions were most favorable and rapid growth was made, much re-planting done, cultivation made possible and the ground cleared of an unusually large crop of weeds. Haymaking began about the 15th and became general in the southern part of the State during the latter part of the month. The yield was below the average. Small grains matured rapidly and some wheat and rye were harvested after the 20th. Many fields of oats were reported as looking yellow and spotted. Tobacco setting was completed and obtained a good start. By the end of the month corn had improved in color and was growing rapidly. A large acreage of potatoes were doing well, pasturage improving and most crops in good condition. Rain began to be needed in some sections at the close of the month.

July.

The temperature for July was 3.2 degrees above the average. Extremely hot weather prevailed on the 1st, 19th, 26th, 28th and 29th. The coolest weather occurred on the 6th, 7th, 8, 9th and 10th.

The precipitation (2.37 inches) was only about one-half the usual amount. Although showers were fairly frequent, they were badly distributed and insufficient, and during the latter part of the month a general drought prevailed. During the first half of the month all crops made good growth, small grains and grass matured and ripened rapidly and by the 15th wheat and rye harvesting and haying were well advanced and in some sections finished. As the weather was excellent for curing, the harvested crops were saved in fine condition. The yield and quality of wheat was an average one, and that of rye was fair. The hay crop varied with the locality, ranging from good to bad. Considerable foul material was mixed with the crop and the quantity was below average. Most oats were harvested by the end of the month, the crop being a light one.

Considerable buckwheat sown. A severe hailstorm occurred on the 16th which was damaging to crops in Bucks county. By the end of the month the drought was being severely felt all over the State. Pastures were drying up, wells and springs failing and all crops more or less injuriously affected.

August.

The mean temperature for August, 69.4 degrees, was an average one. High temperatures occurred on the 1st, 2d, 8th and 24th, and low temperatures on the 5th, 11th, 17th, 22d and 23d. The average precipitation for the State for the month was 1.84 inches, which is 3.06 inches less than the average for the last six years. As the drought, which began in July, continued throughout the entire month of August, its effect was very damaging to all growing crops. Small springs were dried up and the larger ones lower than they had been for many years. Pasturage became scarce and stock had to be fed. Corn was stunted in growth and ripened prematurely. Potatoes were small in size and light in yield. Some of the late oats not worth cutting. Buckwheat looked fairly well but not up to the average. Most of the tobacco housed in good condition. Fall plowing and seeding delayed on account of dry condition of soil. Vegetables and garden truck made very slow growth. Fruit crop a light one. York and Lancaster counties probably suffered less from the drought than other parts of the State.

September.

The temperature for the month (66.6 degrees) was about 4.5 degrees above the average. The temperature during the early part of the month was above the normal and the conditions were favorable for the harvesting of ripened crops. The drought was broken on the 8th by general and heavy rains which, however, came too late to be of material benefit to many of the crops. Most corn dried up without being well filled and was placed in shock during September. Very late corn and buckwheat was improved by the September rains. A fair crop of buckwheat was harvested; balance of tobacco housed in good condition; apple crop below average. The rainfall from and after the 8th was sufficient to greatly improve pasturage and to fit the ground for plowing and seeding, much of which was accomplished before the close of the month. Early sown wheat was up at the end of the month.

Very respectfully,

T. F. TOWNSEND,

Observer and Assistant.

ASSESSMENTS AND TAXES.

Assessment Returns.

Knowing every citizen of Pennsylvania to be deeply interested in the question of taxation, the department has, from year to year, renewed its efforts to procure complete assessment returns. In this way it sought to place before the people all possible information on the subject. While the limited means provided by the legislature for the collection of these statistics will not allow as thorough an investigation as one could wish, yet the returns from the counties grow yearly more complete, and this year undoubtedly more nearly approach perfection than those of any previous year. It is believed, indeed, that the general reports of this year will, in the main, be gratifying to the tax payer and from them the careful student of these matters may deduct many interesting conclusions.

In Part II of this report is published in full the assessment reports from every county in the State. Fortunately there are but few instances in which these reports are not complete. But even they are incomplete without reason. County commissioners should exercise great care and take great pride in having these returns made complete in every particular. The law governing this matter requires them to make a complete report under every branch of assessment. To do less than this, therefore, is not only a violation of the law on the part of the commissioners, but it also places the county in an unfair light when its aggregates are compared side by side with those from other counties from which accurate and complete returns have been received. To illustrate, it would hardly be a just object of pride on the part of a citizen of Armstrong, Blair, Carbon, Clearfield or Lycoming counties that they have only about half as many stages, omnibuses, hacks, etc., this year as they had last year, or on the part of a citizen of Snyder county to notice that the county's entire valuation in this direction is only $150. But they are better still in this showing than Berks, Cameron, Fulton, McKean, Potter, and Sullivan, whose returns would indicate that they had no money whatever invested in this branch of property. So many instances might be given in which the county commissioners in some degree stultify themselves by not insisting on complete assessments of all branches of taxable property in every borough and township, and in making full returns to this department.

During the month of March, blanks, upon which these returns should be made, are mailed to the county commissioners. Doubtless in some instances, yet they are certainly few, it may not be possible to report promptly, yet by the 1st of September at the very latest, every county in the State should have its report filed in this department. To delay them longer than this interferes with the prompt publication of the annual report, which the department aims to have ready for distribution as early as possible. It is but fair to add, however, that the dilatory counties are but few and that most of the counties now make very prompt returns and that, with each succeeding year, the department has less difficulty in securing prompt returns.

Elsewhere in this report, in the division of assessment reports, will be found tabular statements giving the following information as reported by the several counties, their reports being printed in full:

1. Number of taxables.
2. The number of acres of cleared land.
3. The number of acres of timber land.
4. Value of all real estate as returned by the assessors.
5. Value of all real estate exempt from taxation.
6. Value of all real estate taxable.
7. Number and value of horses, mares, geldings and mules over the age of four years.
8. Number and value of neat cattle over the age of four years.
9. Value of salaries and emoluments of office, offices, posts of profit, professions, trades and occupations.
10. Aggregate value of all property taxable for county purposes.
11. Aggregate amount of county tax assessed.
12. Amount of money at interest, including mortgages, judgments, bonds, notes, stocks, etc.
13. Value of stages, omnibuses, hacks, cabs, etc.
14. Aggregate value of property taxable for State purposes at the rate of four mills on the dollar, including money at interest, stages, omnibuses, hacks, cabs, etc.
15. Aggregate amount of State tax assessed.
16. Debt of each county.

This information has been collected by means of the blanks above referred to. It has further been the duty of the bureau of assessments to examine and verify these returns and prepare them for publication in this part of the annual report of the Department of Internal Affairs. Immediately following these, in Part II of this report, will be found a consolidated and comparative statement, made from the reports from all of the counties. It is a most comprehensive table and includes the totals of each of the above divisions from each county for the years 1893 and 1894. It is obvious, therefore, that the totals of this consolidated statement will represent the aggregates reported from the entire State. An examination of these will doubtless prove to be fraught with equal interest to the taxpayer and the student of statistics.

Many of the counties show peculiar decreases, others increases, which are astonishing, indeed. These can be explained or understood only on the ground of imperfect or incomplete assessments. But, perhaps, the most lamentable feature shown on the face of the returns is the great difference in the basis of valuation adopted by the commissioners and assessors. Many of these officers seem wholly oblivious of the fact that it is the sworn duty of the assessors, when estimating the value of property for the purposes of county taxation, to "assess and value every separate lot or piece or tract of land with the improvements thereon, at the rate or price which they, after due examination and consideration, believe the same would sell for if sold singly and separately at a bona fide sale, after full public notice." A very casual glance even at the comprehensive statement, will show that there is a great undervaluation of all kinds of property unless, indeed, it be the division of money at interest.

It will be remembered that in all the deductions following, where reference is made to increases or decreases in taxables, valuations, taxes assessed, etc., the words "greatest" or "least" mean greatest or least only in proportion to the size and valuation of the county cited. Philadelphia and Allegheny counties may have increased their general wealth more in dollars and cents than any of the smaller counties, but the increase may not be so great in proportion to the population and aggregate valuation of the county.

Number of Taxables in the State.

The entire number of taxables in the State has increased from 1,662,956, in 1893, to 1,684,946, in 1894, or an increase of 21,990. The largest percentage was shown in Blair county, which decreased from 29,527 to 20,086, or 9,441. This would indicate a falling off of nearly one-third of its taxables, but the solution is more likely to be found in the inaccuracy of the returns. Dauphin county has decreased from 34,573 to 29,108, or 5,465, a decrease of about 16 per cent., while last year the same county made a corresponding increase. These are the most, and, indeed, the only remarkable decreases in the State.

The counties showing the greatest increase and the number, as reported in 1893 and in 1894, may be seen in the following table:

| County. | 1893. | 1894. | Increase. |
|---------------------|--------|--------|-----------|
| Forest, | 2,151 | 2,524 | 373 |
| Huntingdon, | 10,668 | 11,253 | 585 |
| Lackawanna, | 53,864 | 57,491 | 3,627 |
| Lawrence, | 14,142 | 15,053 | 911 |
| Luzerne, | 70,164 | 72,523 | 2,359 |
| Washington, | 23,416 | 25,644 | 2,228 |
| Westmoreland, | 36,632 | 39,014 | 2,383 |

Number of Acres of Cleared Land.

Last year's returns showed a decrease in this aggregate, but those of this year show an increase from 14,872,864 to 15,081,061, or 208,197 acres in the year. Clearfield and Wayne show the only pronounced decreases in the State, the former 14,694 acres and the latter 11,092. Cameron shows an increase of 7,971; Lackawanna, 8,480; Mifflin, 7,827; Warren, 6,783; Washington, 6,039, and Wyoming, 4,275 acres. The counties of Beaver, Delaware, Luzerne and Schuyl-kill made no returns under this head either year.

Timbered Land.

The number of acres of timbered land has also increased from 8,296,112 to 8,417,327, or 121,215 acres. Last year's returns, on the other hand, showed a decrease under both of these heads. It is strange, indeed, that the number of acres of cleared and timbered land should both either decrease or increase. An increase in one, should show a corresponding decrease in the other. This would be the invariable result if accurate returns were made by the assessors. The whole number of acres of land, both cleared and timbered, in the State, by actual survey, including all space within the boundaries of the State, is 28,808,442. But the entire number of acres returned by the assessors was 23,168,976, while this year it is 23,498,388, showing a discrepancy somewhere of 5,310,054 acres. But the entire area of the State would include the ground upon which all cities and towns are located, and this is not returned by the assessor as either cleared or timbered land. Then, in the mountainous regions of the State, there are thousands of acres of land once covered with timber which has since been removed. This land is generally regarded as of little or no value and in many cases no returns of such tracts are made to the assessor for the reason that the land cannot be well classified as either cleared or timbered land.

Since the question of forestry culture is attracting a very wide attention, both in this and other states, two tables are herewith submitted, showing six counties which have reported the greatest increase in timbered land and six counties in which the greatest decrease has been reported:

| County. | 1893. | 1894. | Increase. |
|----------------|---------|---------|------------------|
| Blair, | 154,292 | 160,840 | 6,548 |

| Wyoming, | 122,642 | 76,595 | 46,045 |
| York, | 112,338 | 95,323 | 17,015 |

The counties of Allegheny, Beaver, Delaware, Greene, Luzerne and Schuylkill made no reports either this year or last as to timbered lands.

Value of All Real Estate.

The aggregate value of all real estate has increased from $2,599,433,790 to $2,634,601,500, or $44,167,710. The counties showing the greatest increases are Allegheny, which increase from $435,911,001 to $443,701,549, or $7,790,548; Lycoming, from $49,280,390 to $20,468,283, or $1,187,893; Montour, from $2,687,425 to $3,706,982, or $1,019,557; Philadelphia, from $851,386,796 to $872,464,481, or $21,057,685. The following table shows the counties whose returns indicate a decrease in their aggregate valuation:

| County. | 1893. | 1894. | Decrease. |
|-----------------------|-------------|-------------|------------------|
| Armstrong, | $9,644,331 | $9,330,485 | $313,846 |

| Wyoming, | 3,732,195 | 3,696,175 | 36,020 |

Value of Real Estate Exempt from Taxation.

The value of real estate exempt from taxation has increased from $239,243,753 to $245,368,752, or $6,124,999. This is rather a wholesome state of affairs, since the property in Pennsylvania that is exempt from taxation consists of municipal buildings of all kinds, almshouses, school houses, churches and cemeteries. An increase in this direction, therefore, is particularly gratifying. The increase last year was $4,442,200, while this year it is nearly 50 per cent. more. The counties showing the greatest increases are the following:

| County. | 1883. | 1894. | Increase. |
|---------------------|-------------|-------------|------------------|
| Clearfield, | $668,252 | $826,835 | $158,583 |

| Venango, | 3,955,096 | 2,767,406 | 1,187,690 |

Cambria county reported nothing in 1893 and in 1894 has reported but $2,000 under this head. Fulton county reported nothing either year.

Value of Real Estate Taxable.

The value of real estate taxable has increased from $2,351,190,037 to 02,389,232,748, or $38,062,711. No alarming decrease is shown, nor is there any increase that is particularly worthy of notice. The greatest increase and the greatest decrease were made, however, in the following counties:

| County. | 1893. | 1894. | Increase. |
|---------------------|--------------|--------------|------------------|
| Berks, | $68,087,692 | $69,495,687 | $1,407,995 |

Number and of Value of Horses and Mules Over the Age of Four Years.

All horses and mules, when over the age of four years are taxed for county purposes. Nothing more convincing is needed to show that the Act of Assembly requiring it is practically a dead letter, than the assesment returns which we are now considering. It is, moreover, a common saying throughout the State that very few of these animals ever reach that age. Their undervaluation is equally proverbial. The number in the last year has decreased from 561,368 to 550,134, or 11,234, while the aggregate value has decreased from $32,585,620 to $30,162,309, or $2,423,311. The average price in 1893 was $35.28, while this year it is $54.82. This increase is, of course, not due to the real increase in value of these animals, for they have steadily decreased in value, but rather to a system of assessment which is undoubtedly becoming more accurate each year. Franklin county returned the aggregate value last year as $14,868, while this year it returns it as $11,491, or a decrease of $3,377. Philadelphia gave the value each year, but does not give the number.

Neat Cattle, Number and Value.

The number and value of neat cattle have both decreased during the past year. Last year the number assessed was 692,259, while this year it is 672,023, while the value has decreased from $12,148,429 to $11,565,283. In Adams county the number has decreased from 9,905 to 9,864, while the value has increased from $164,810 to $172,285, or $7,475. This, of course, is but a small matter, but it certainly is additional evidence, if any were needed, of the inaccurate methods of assessment in many counties. The average value of neat cattle over the age of four years in 1893 was $17.53, while this year it is $17.47. Two years ago it was $17.49. Three years ago it was $18.96, while in reality these animals have decreased in value at least 50 per cent. in the last three years. Allegheny county shows a decrease in numbers from 21,335 to 19,502. Cameron a decrease from 736 to 680. Chester a decrease from 38,567 to 35,605; Fayette from 9,322 to 8,438; Greene, from 7,933 to 7,233, and their valuation has decreased from $134,063 to $99,789.

Value of Salaries and Emoluments of Office.

The value of salaries and emoluments of office has increased from $111,014,967 to $114,414,918, or $3,398,951. Last year the increase was $6,133,065. Allegheny increased from $44,952,725 to $47,191,285, or $2,138,560, while Armstrong decreased from $348,559 to $312,357, or $36,202. No other counties show great increases or decreases. Lancaster and Philadelphia made no report either year under this head.

Property Taxable for County Purposes.

This has also increased from $2,507,066,937 to $2,545,500,738, or $38,433,801. No very marked decrease is shown in the returns of any county though the counties of Armstrong, Bradford, Cambria, Cameron, Clarion, Fulton, Greene, Huntingdon, Jefferson and Venango show small decreases. The following table shows the counties making greatest gains in this very important branch of taxation:

Aggregate Amount of County Tax Assessed.

The aggregate amount of county tax assessed in 1893 was $18,851,798.73, while in 1894 it was $19,935,994.04, or an increase of $1,084,195.31. The counties of Armstrong, Chester, Clearfield, Franklin, Greene, Huntingdon, Indiana and Juniata show small decreases. Of these Franklin shows the largest, viz: from $70,150.66 to $53,280.72. The following table shows the greatest increases:

The Amount of Money at Interest.

To have money at interest is certainly a sign of thrift and by some writers is regarded as an unfailing index of prosperity. For the past nine years the amount reported in Pennsylvania has steadily increased. This increase was doubtless due to some wholesome legislation passed in 1885, compelling the taxable to make sworn returns of all property and providing also for certificates of all judgments and mortgages to be made to the county commissioners. Three years ago the returns showed an increase of nearly seventy millions; two years ago it was about ten millions, and last year nearly seventeen millions. Equal care in other branches of taxation would doubtless show the same notable increases. This year's returns show an increase of $8,379,044. The greatest increases were made in the counties included in the following table:

| County. | 1893. | 1894. | Increase. |
|---------------------|--------------|--------------|------------------|
| Allegheny, | $67,317,716 | $73,176,556 | $5,858,840 |
| Cambria, | 1,273,339 | 1,672,833 | 399,494 |
| Clinton, | 970,938 | 1,146,415 | 175,477 |

| Philadelphia, | 299,027,153 | 306,279,598 | 7,251,445 |

Aggregate Value of Stages, Omnibuses, Hacks, Etc.

The aggregate value of this division of taxable property has decreased in the last year from $589,204 to $570,061, or $19,143. But a glance at the returns under this head will demonstrate that the average taxpayer is not scrupulously exact in reporting his possession in this division. The law providing for this taxation should be either repealed or rigidly enforced by the assessors. At present it is most flagrantly violated. The counties of Berks, Cameron, Fulton, McKean, Potter and Sullivan have made no report in this division. Armstrong's valuation of this property fell from $4,105 to $2,544; Blair from $4,208 to $2,790; Carbon from $1,690 to $880; Clearfield from $20,547 to $10,932. Clearfield has still a high valuation in this branch of property when compared with other counties, but there is no reason why it should be reduced nearly 50 per cent. in one year. Lebanon county, which includes the wealthy city of Lebanon, had $890 worth each year. Lycoming, with the wealthy city of Williamsport in it, last year had $2,050, while this year it has but $990 worth, a falling off of more than 50 per cent. Philadelphia's valuation fell from $181,525 to $167,560. Snyder county last year reported $125 worth, while this year it is $150. Wayne county, on the other hand, increased from $280 last year to $3,595 this year. Westmoreland from $7,239 to $12,570, and Wyoming from $255 to $570.

Property Taxable for State Purposes.

The aggregate value of property taxable for State purposes has increased from $608,253,612 to $616,613,513, or $8,359,901. It will be remembered that this branch of property includes money at interest, such as mortgages, judgments, bonds, notes, stocks, etc., and all stages, omnibuses, hacks, cabs, etc. By Act of Assembly of 1885, a State tax of three mills on the dollar was placed on this property, and by the Act of 1891 it was raised to four mills. The taxation of money at interest has resulted in a vast revenue to the State, while that of hacks, cabs, etc., as has been shown elsewhere, is a signal failure. The county of Clinton shows the greatest increase in proportion to its wealth and population in the State. It increased from $970,938 to $1,148,890. Allegheny increased from $67,402,701 to $73,268,196. Philadelphia from $299,208,678 to $306,447,158. The greatest decreases are shown by the following table:

| County. | 1893. | 1894. | Decrease. |
|-------------------|-------------|-------------|------------------|
| Clearfield, | $1,610,197 | $1,283,369 | $326,828 |

Aggregate Amount of State Tax Assessed.

The reader will not forget that these figures representing the aggregate amount of State tax assessed do not include the State tax paid by railroads and other corporations. The State annually appropriates five and a half millions of dollars to the school fund, or more than twice as much as is levied by all the city, borough and township assessors in the State for State purposes. Last year the increase in State tax assessed was from $2,365,989.61 to $2,433,011.84, or $67,032.23, while this year it has increased from $2,433,011.84 to $2,466,451.30, or but $33,439.47. Below are given two tables showing the greatest increase and the greatest decrease made in the State under this heading:

Debt of Counties.

The total debt of the counties of the State decreased this year from $63,982,537.24 to $63,743,368.40, or $239,168.84. Of this immense aggregate Philadelphia has $54,359,790.86, but has in the last year reduced her debt $936,447.12. It will be evident from these figures that the aggregate debt of all the other counties has increased. But the county tax assessed has also increased over a million of dollars. Improvements in many counties may have been made which will account for this apparent discrepancy. The following tables show the largest increases and decreases in the State:

| County. | 1893. | 1894. | Increase. |

TAXES.

A law was passed during the session of the legislature of 1889, the provisions of which require the commissioners of the several counties of the Commonwealth to furnish the Department of Internal Affairs, each year, with a tabular statement showing the total amount of taxes collected for all purposes, specifying the amount collected for the support of the poor, for the construction and repair of streets, roads and bridges; for school purposes; the amount collected on personal property, occupations and licenses; the amount collected on the real estate of railroad corporations, as well as the amount collected on corporations other than railroads. Although the law has been in force five years the department has never succeeded in procuring returns from all the counties in the State. A larger number of counties, however, have reported on the subject this year than in any former year since the law went into effect. Out of sixty-seven counties in the State sixty-three have complied with the mandates of the law, while four have failed to do so. The delinquent counties are Carbon, Greene, Schuylkill and Tioga. Those failing to report last year were Berks, Carbon, Luzerne, McKean, Schuylkill and Tioga. It will be observed that Greene county was among the number which made return last year but has failed this year. The commissioners of the delinquent counties were repeatedly urged by the department to furnish the information required, but for some unexplained reason they have failed to do so. It is undoubtedly the desire of the people in all the counties that the law in this respect should be fully observed, and yet it is evident that the commissioners of the delinquent counties not only ignore the wishes of the people but wilfully disregard the law. The department has exercised its full powers in its efforts to have the requirements of the law in reference to tax statistics complied with.

Blank forms upon which to make a compilation of taxes collected in the several counties are transmitted to the commissioners each year. These forms are simple and are accompanied with proper instructions, so that there need be no difficulty in complying with the law where there is an inclination to do so. An examination of the tax returns from the sixty-three counties making report this year will show that they are, perhaps, more complete than those of former years, and will be found interesting to those seeking information on the subject of taxes.

The returns from the several counties of the State, together with a consolidated table, will be found in Part II of this report.

Taxes Collected for the Support of the Poor.

From the returns made by thirty-four counties out of the sixty-three making report, it appears that the amount collected for the support of the poor was $1,418,486.93. This, however, does not include the amounts appropriated by the commissioners in the twenty-nine counties where the poor are a county charge. The taxes for this purpose are raised by a general levy with the county taxes in the last mentioned counties and the amounts thus appropriated make a total of $716,465.77, which, added to the amount reported as collected, makes the sum of $2,134,952.70 that has been paid in the sixty-three counties for the support of the poor during the year. Last year the total amount reported was $1,886,583.01, making an increase of $248,369.69. This increase is partly due to the fact that the counties of Berks, Luzerne and McKean having failed to report last year are included this year. Greene county, however, which appropriated $11,150.00 last year, is not included this year.

The most marked increase in the amount paid for the support of the poor was in Allegheny county, that county last year reporting $200,222.01, while this year the amount is $236,085.09, an increase of $35,863.08. The next highest is Bradford county, which shows an increase of $11,126.62 over last year. The greatest decrease is shown in the return from Lackawanna county, the amount of decrease being $22,932.90. Last year the same county showed an increase of $31,494.71 over the previous year. The return from Philadelphia county shows a decrease of $18,750.00 over last year. In thirty-three other counties there is a slight increase in the amount of poor taxes collected or appropriated, while others show a decrease, and some report the same amount as last year.

Construction and Repair of Streets, Roads and Bridges.

There has been collected for the construction and repairs of streets, roads and bridges the sum of $7,625,209.40, to which add $295,804.06 appropriated by the county commissioners for the same purpose, making a total of $7,921,013.46 as against $7,869,523.46 last year, an increase of $51,490.00. The report of last year showed an increase of $1,283,502.74 over the previous year. Some marked changes are noted in the amounts reported from different counties as compared with last year. For instance, the figures for Allegheny county are given in the report of last year at $1,602,708.00, while this year the amount is $1,013,055.40, a decrease of $589,652.60. In the return of last year from the same county there was an increase of $450,854.13 over the previous year. The return from Lycoming county shows a decrease of $70,674.19; while the Beaver county return has a gain of $13,408.10; Blair, $28,265.11 and Lackawanna $57,362.03 over last year. Philadelphia, last year, was $1,145,428.88 and this year the figures are $1,123,691.00, a reduction of $21,737.88. The returns from many other counties vary materially as compared with the previous year.

Taxes Collected for School Purposes.

The annual appropriation of $5,500,000.00 made by the State for school purposes does not seem to diminish the total amount of taxes collected, as the return for the present year shows an increase of $663,661.81. The amount collected last year for school purposes in the State was $10,268,293.79, while the amount reported for this year is $10,931,955.60. The increase, however, is partly due to the fact that two more counties are included in this report than were given in the report of last year. In Allegheny county there is an increase of $414,225.41 over last year, while the return from Philadelphia shows a decrease of $527,948.65. A good many counties make slight increases while some show a decrease. From the fact that there is a large appropriation annually made by the State for school purposes and the total amount of taxes collected are increasing, it is evident that a very much larger sum of money is now expended for the public schools than was a few years ago. It was supposed that when the law was passed appropriating so large a sum to the use of the common schools the burden of taxation in this respect would be lightened but the figures do not prove this to be the case, at least in some districts of the State.

Taxes on Personal Property.

The returns of this year show a slight decrease in the amount of taxes collected on personal property, although two more counties were added to the list of those reporting. The sixty-one counties last year made a total of $2,690,499.20, while sixty-three counties the present year show a total of $2,674,038.83, a decrease of $16,460.37. Had Allegheny county shown up as well as last year there would not have been any decrease in the total amount of taxes collected for this purpose, that county alone making a decrease of $32,631.61. The other counties vary but slightly from last year, some showing an increase and some a decrease in the amount collected.

Taxes on Occupations.

There is a reported increase of $106,121.02 in the amount of taxes collected over last year, the greater portion of which is accounted for by the two additional counties reporting this year. The total amount of taxes collected on occupations in sixty-three counties this year was $1,004,806.90 as against $898,685.88 in sixty-one counties last year. In the return from Lancaster county last year there was no occupation tax reported, while the returns for the present year shows that $50,115.00 was collected. Cambria county shows an increase of $17,648.12 over the previous year; Fayette, $20,646.13, and Lackawanna, $19,802.09. The largest decrease is shown in the return from Allegheny county, the amount being $92,718.52. Other counties have slight gains and some have losses.

Taxes from Licenses.

The total amount reported from licenses of various kinds for the year was $4,948,736.78, while for the previous year the amount was $4,532,667.84, the increase being $416,068.94. The two additional counties reporting this year make up $331,970.50 of this increase. In Philadelphia the increase was $21,601.03, and a decrease of $2,880.24 in Allegheny county.

Local Taxes Paid by Railroad Corporations.

The returns show that the railway corporations of the State have paid local taxes this year to the amount of $753,321.46, as against $669,887.67 last year. Of this amount $444,926.27 was collected in the city of Philadelphia. It should be understood that these are local taxes. The amount of taxes collected from railway corporations for State purposes will be found in the reports of the Auditor General and State Treasurer.

Taxes Collected on the Real Estate of Corporations Other Than Railroads.

In this item of taxes there has been a large increase in the amount collected as compared with the previous year. The total amount reported for this year is $1,815,920.28, while last year the amount was $1,182,133.08, making the increase $633,787.20. The addition of two counties that have failed to report heretofore contribute $391,585.16 to this increase. Allegheny county shows an increase of $131,659.72. The return from Philadelphia and several other counties fail to give any information on this item of taxation.

Taxes Collected for all Purposes.

The total amount of taxes collected in the State for all purposes cannot here be given for the reason that the commissioners of four counties have failed to comply with the requirements of the law. In the sixty-three counties that have reported this year on the subject of taxation, the total amount of taxes collected is summed up at $45,329,721.11. The sixty-one counties reporting last year made the total amount for that year $42,265,275.52, or $3,064,445.59 less than the amount collected for the present year. The counties of Berks, Luzerne and McKean contribute $2,181,111.86 to this increase, as they were not included in the total for last year, while the county of Greene returned $164,679.52 last year and failed to make any report for the present year. In column five of the consolidated table, in the latter part of this report will be found, by counties, the total amount of taxes collected for all purposes, whether for the maintenance of State, city, county, township or ward governments, the support of the poor or any other purpose, including the amount collected for liquor and other licenses.

THE BUREAU OF INDUSTRIAL STATISTICS.

The first part of the twenty-second annual report of the Bureau of Industrial Statistics contains an investigation concerning women in the several industries. This is the first investigation of the kind ever undertaken by the bureau. Not only have the earnings of women engaged in various employments been ascertained, but also their hours of labor, and their condition generally. One of the facts revealed by this investigation is that the law requiring employers to provide seats for their employes has been set at naught in many cases by dismissing employes if found making use of them. In other words, employers have generally complied with the law so far as to procure the seats, but have practically forbidden their use. This investigation did not extend to every locality in the State, but a sufficient number were visited and statistics enough collected, it is believed, to form a correct idea concerning the remuneration paid to women and other important matters connected with their employment.

The next portion of the report is devoted to an investigation regarding persons engaged in building trades. Returns were obtained from working men in various parts of the State. Besides statistics relating to wages, hours of labor, non-employment, etc., remarks were invited concerning apprenticeship, industrial schools, employment of machinery and other matters. It is believed that some of these remarks will be found interesting as well as useful. Generally, it may be said, with respect to industrial schools, that working men believe in the union of the apprenticeship system and industrial school in order to fit the person more perfectly for his occupation. These answers, however, reveal a great variety of opinion on the subject. Some still favor the old apprenticeship system on the ground that industrial schools will multiply to excess the number of skilled persons. Others are opposed to industrial schools on the ground that the training must necessarily be of an imperfect character and others believe that the number of apprentices should be rigidly limited, bearing some relation to those now engaged in the various trades. How far machinery has temporarily displaced working men is an interesting question. Some remarks are also made concerning the store order system. It appears that there is an understanding in some parts of the State between employers of labor and persons who conduct such stores and working men complain not only of the small remuneration received on some occasions but also that they are required to take such orders in payment, whereby they really obtain a smaller return for their labor than they would if they could buy wherever they pleased.

The third portion of the report consists of statistics relating to strikes that occurred in the State during the year 1894, with a description of the more important ones. The record of strikes has now been given in each report since 1881.

The next part of the report contains an elaborate investigation into the manufacture of pig iron in Pennsylvania. Full statistics are given concerning the production for a long period, the prices, the relative production in this State to other states and the cost of making pig iron in the south and west. These statistics are followed by a historical account of the development of blast furnaces in the State from the earliest period. Some conclusions are drawn concerning the future of the industry which it is believed possess special interest at the present time.

The final portion of the report relates to accidents in coal mines. Notwithstanding the efficiency of the inspectors, accidents continue to be very numerous. The report contains an investigation into the causes of the accidents and also some recommendations with respect to the diminution of them. One of the causes is the employment of ignorant miners. A law was passed a few years ago requiring miners to be examined before undertaking employment of this kind but this law seems to be faulty, as persons who apply for certificates are rarely, if ever refused. The mines, therefore, contain a large percentage of ignorant miners who have no right to jeopardize the lives of others whatever they may say concerning the right to jeopardize their own. Another cause of accidents is that even the most skilful miners knowingly take risks when they ought not to do so. The reports of the inspectors are filled with undeniable facts of this character. These two are the most prolific causes of mine accidents.

BUREAU OF RAILWAY, CANAL, TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE COMPANIES.

The annual reports of these corporations are made to this department and published as Part IV of the department reports. They embrace interesting data regarding the affairs of these corporations, including capitalization, cost of road, cost of operation, tonnage, mileage, number of passengers carried, bonded and floated indebtedness, receipts, dividends, etc.

In most of the states commissioners are appointed who have similar supervision over the affairs of railways to that exercised by the Secretary of Internal Affairs under the Constitution and law. The legislature, however, has never made provision for the satisfactory supervision of its railways, although the ground work, therefore, is embodied in the Constitution. The law has never provided for a distinct and separate bureau in this department, but under the organization in 1887, a separate bureau was established and the work of answering complaints, securing reports, compiling data and publishing annual reports, has been performed by the employment of but two clerks and such attention as could be given the work by the head of the department. For a proper discharge of the duties of this bureau the law should provide for a chief of the bureau who is familiar with the railway interests of the State and is competent to discharge the important duties devolving upon him. The railway interests of Pennsylvania are greater than those of any other state in the Union. In some states, even among the larger ones, the number of railways is only from twenty to fifty, while in this State there are over 300. It is one of the most important interests of the State, and yet up to this time the legislature has made but little provision to enforce the provisions of the Constitution or make effective such laws as are in existence in regard to railway supervision. It is a vast amount of work to compile the statistics from all these corporations. This will be apparent to any one who will study the tabulations that appear in the annual report of the department.

MINE INSPECTORS.

There are eight anthracite inspection districts and ten bituminous inspection districts in the Commonwealth, in each of which a mine inspector is appointed who, to a considerable extent, is given supervision over the interests of his particular district. Annual reports are made by the inspectors to this department, which are compiled and tabulated and published as Part V of the department reports. While these reports may not be of general interest to the public, they are of great importance to those directly or indirectly interested in the mining industry, particularly those employed in the mines. The mining laws of Pennsylvania are enacted with a view of having adopted all the safety appliances and means of preventing injury to limb and loss of life, but with all the legislation passed upon the subject, there are still thousands of persons killed or injured annually in the mines of the State. While it is a fact probably beyond dispute, that legislation has been the means of preventing many accidents, there is still much opportunity for improvement, and with the recommendations annually made by the inspectors it is hoped that more wholesome legislation will be passed and that those who are engaged in this perilous vocation will, so far as possible, be protected in the performance of their work.

The Secretary of Internal Affairs issues certificates as mine foremen and assistant mine foremen to those who have qualified under the law. Examination boards have been established, and it is no doubt a fact that the examinations are carefully made, and that few persons gain possession of certificates who have not the requisite qualifications. During the year ninety-two mine foremen's certificates and 125 assistant mine foremen's certificates were issued.
